NEW FRINGED HOLLYHOCK

It Differs From the Old Type Hollyhoo

Materially. The fried Hollyhock, Allegheny, which is being introduced this year, has very little in common with its parent the old style double Hollyhock and a flower separated from the stock would hardly be recognized as Hollyhock at all, on account of the novel arrangeall, on account of the novel arrange-ment of the petals which are deeply fringed or cut, of a rather transparent texture, and of a silky nature. The veins throughout the petals give the appearance of crimped or crushed silk and this to such a degree that a florist of long experience refused to believe that a flower of the Allegheny, which a lady wore pinned on her coat, was real.

In the old type Hollyhock one finds a comparatively dense centre made up of short petals or reverted stamens in a setting of flat outer petals, generally a single circle of these which gives an unbalanced appearance to the whole flower. The Allegheny shows a well rounded flower-as the petals are nearly all of a uniform length, and yet not so precise as to spoil the grace of the flowers. The Allegheny Hollyhock is a profuse bloomer and has a long season of flowering, blooming frequently after the first frosts in November. On reason for this long period is no doubt the fact that from two to four buds are located at each axil on most plants; these buds develop in rotation, and two distinct crops of flowers with an intervening space of buds and seed pods can be seen on the plants; the lower set of flowers being the second or third crop coming in.

While the flowers are larger than those of the old favorites, from 41/2 inches upwards to 7 inches across, ed bunting." But when under Captain they are quite light and drop from the the Guerriere, a vessel of nearly equal plant when past their prime not hanging there disfiguring it as the old double ones are inclined to do.

Treatment of Swine. See if the sow has an milk and whether the bag is caked. If caked, commanded by Captain Bainbridge, grease well with equal parts lard and coal oil, as warm as can be applied. I wring a flannel cloth out of hot water and hot as I can bear it, and lay on the bag of the sow. You will be surprised to see how the cake will yield to the application. One application is nearly always sufficient and as soon as the sow gets up give her a warm, weak gruel, or dish water and keep that up at each feeding time until the sow is free from fever. She will then have good appetite; then begin to increase the slop in richness and quantity and you can then begin to feed whole corn, soaked is better than dry; then you can see the pigs grow, and be sure to add all the milk you can get to your slop. As soon as the little pigs begin to turn around place a shallow trough putside of the sow's pen and pour a little milk in it for the pigs, and they will soon begin to drink it with relish. Is the Never-Failing Health Re-It is now an established fact that

Then feed a little soaked corn as soon as they begin to crack it; they enjoy it. I like to feed the pigs away from their dam, and at 10 weeks old they are ready to wean. I aim to give the pigs at this age such feed as comes nearest milk. This is the time to lay the founsists largely of bone and muscle. Na-ture is our best example, and milk is the food nature provided, and we should feed such food as comes nearest fulfilling that want to be successful as breeders and feeders. The size of the litter at this time should be largely bone and muscle, and not fat; and to produce this result requires a bulky and not a concentrated food. A range of blue grass, alfalfa or clover aids in giving a good bone and capacity for rounding up and putting on the flesh when the time comes, with a richer and more concentrated food. A profitable hog must have a well developed abdomen, and we should respond to the demands of the pig at the different stages of its life to accomplish this. The pigs should never be

Farm and Home.

The waste of manure is a most common mistake among farmers, small and great. Offensive barnyards, pigpens Now is the time to strike at the root of your besetting troubles. The work of recureration begun to-day will save you future weeks, perhaps months of torture and agony.

The immense and unprecedented demand for Paine's Celery Compound—earths' best medicine—is an indication that thousands are throwing off disease and seeking health. Past experience and the happy results given by and poultry houses are very common There should never be any offensive odors about the premises; absorbents should be used so freely as to prevent any smell getting loose to pollute the Poultry droppings should be looked after more regularly and the house cleansed. Almost anything seems to be good enough for poultry in this secience and the happy results given by Paine's Celery Compound all combine to make clear your path of duty. Begin to-day with Paine's Celery Comcould make their manure crop one-third more with ease. Straw, which is used plentifully, does not absorb liquid manure nor does it retain the odor. pound, if you would establish health and vigor for the coming summer Those who can should buy land plaster, but when this cannot be done, woods litter is very good, especially if a little dirt is taken with it. Straw and corn fodder are also used in too wa soul from the universal soul of wasteful a manner: cut or shredded, their feeding value would be much increased, which would leave a good deal of hay to be sold as a money crop when hay is scarce. The farmer is apt to be too wrapped up in himself. Not less than one million dollars is This is a mistake. Every farmer annually spent by people seeking an absolute cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis should have one or more speciality and he should call the attention of the public to it by exhibiting at fairs and in every way let people know what he has. I have observed often that when a farmer begins to improve his stock, his house, farm and family fall in line and all seem to be satisfied that they are in a progressive line. Pain in the Joints

May be muscular or rheumatic. The joints are hard to get at, and it requires a powerful, penetrating remedy to reach the affected parts. Polson's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. The pain is expelled as if by magic, for one drop of Nerviline equals in strength five drops of other remedies. You won't often call the doctor if Nerviline is in the house. Price 25 cents.

Children Cry for CASTORIA

Anecdotal.

It is recorded of Mr. W. S. Gilbert that on hearing of the title of Henry Arthur Jones' new play, "The Prin-cess's Nose," he remarked, "I hope it may run long."

United States Senator Hoar received word the other day that a friend, who had been supposed to have appendictus, was suffering not from that allment, but from acute indigestion.
"That is good news," said the Senator.
"I rejoice that the trouble lies in the table of contents rather than in the appendix.

Samuel Rogers, the poet, told of an Englishman and a Frenchman who had to fight a duel. That they might have a better chance of missing another, they were to fight in a dark room. The Englishman fired up the chimney and brought down the French-man! "When I tell this story in Paris," added Rogers, "I put the Englishman up the chimney."

James G. Blaine used to tell this story: Once in Dublin, toward the end of the opera, Satan was conducting Faust through a trap-door which re-presented the gates of Hades. His Majesty got through all right-he was used to going below-but Faust, who was quite stout, got only about halfway in, and no squeezing would get him any farther. Suddenly an Irishman in the gallery exclaimed, devoutly, "Thank God, hell is full."

When Moses Colt Tyler, the celebrated professsor of history at Cornell. was an instructor at the University of Michigan he had charge of a class in English that assembled at 8 o'clock a.m. One raw February morning at roll-call, he read the name of Robbins." a member of the class, without getting an answer. "Mr. Robbins," he repeated in a slightly louder volce. Still no reply. "Ah," said the in-structor, with a quiet smile, "come to think of it, it is rather early for rob-

Once during a heated debate between Senator Joseph B. Foraker, of Ohio, and Senator Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, the question of law in Texas and law in Ohio came up. The pas-sage became warm. Foraker, by way of a parting shot, told Bailey that if he would come to Ohio he would learn great deal of law that he did not know. "If there is so very much law to be learned in Ohio," remarked Bailey, "I must advise the Senator to spend all his spare time there. He needs it."

A somewhat apocryphal anecdote of Sir Wilfrid Laurier is going the rounds of the United States press. During the last general elections, it is related, a Quebec Liberal, whose acquaintance with Sir Wilfrid was only political sent this telegram to his leader, who county that your children have not been baptized. There were visitors one day at his laboratory, to whom, as usual, he was polite, al-though busy, and he patiently answered many questions unnecessarily shouted at him. Finally one of the visitors, the humorist of the party, said to another: "I bet he'd hear it we ask him to have a drink." "Yes," said Edison, looking directly at the man and smiling, "I would; but no, thank you, not to-day."

The late Lord Dufferin was fond of relating an amusing experience which occurred when he was returning to Treland from a diplomatic mission to be married, and his engagement to the beautiful Miss Hamilton had just been announced. He landed one evening on the platform of a small country sta-tion near Clandeboye, and hired a driver to take him the four or five miles, but he was so muffled up that the driver failed to recognize him. Presently Lord Dufferin asked: "Any news about here?" "No news," grumpily replied the man, "except that the beautiful Miss Hamilton is going to marry that ugly fellow, Dufferin!"

Catching Fugitive Hats.

On a recent windy Sunday a new and apparently profitable industry was disclosed in up-town New York. It was a day when hats went sud-denly off the head and traveled a block or two before they alighted, and then rolled or bounded three or four blocks more, like low-driven golf balls. People at Broadway and Forty-second street, says the "Tri-bune," had just watched a young felfow disappear down the cross street in pursuit of his De ., and were turning to go on their ways, when a negro rounded the corner, who looked like hat-rack. Derbies were tucked under each arm; he held a muddy tall hat in one hand and a white felt crush hat in the other, and on top of his own Derby a black felt hat was fammed securely. He wore a smile from ear to ear. "What are you doing with all those hats?" someone asked him.

"Well, I's takin' all dat am a-com in' ma way," and he grinned. "I could 'a' got more, but I ain't got no more place to put um."
"Why don't you give them back to

"Well, you see," said he, "they was most gen'rally so fah away dat I couldn't wait."
Then he went on up Broadway, with all his hats.

"He proves the old saying," was remarked; "never chase your own hat-someone is always ready to do it for you."
