"FRUIT-A-LIVES" Brought The Joy Of Health After Two Years' Suffering

MADAM LAPLANTE, 85 St. Rose St., Montreal, April 4th. "For over two years I was sick and miserable. I suffered from constant Headaches, and had Palpitation of the Heart so badly that I feared I would die. These seemed to be a lump in my stomach and the Constipation was dreadful. I suffered from Pain in the Back and Kidney Disease. I was treated by a physician for a year and a half and he did me no good at all. I tried "Fruit-a-lives" as a last resort. After using three boxes, I was greatly improved and twelve boxes made me well. Now I can work all day and there are no Headaches, no Palpitation, no Heart Trouble, no Constipation, no Pain in Kidney Trouble and I feel like a new being—and it was "Fruit-a-lives" that gave me back my health."

MADAM ARTHUR LAPLANTE, 50c a box, 8 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

Prohibition in Sight.

A LETTER FROM REV. H. R. GRANT, New Glasgow, December 27.—We received a telegram on Saturday night from the general secretary of the Prohibition committee stating that an order-in-council had been passed prohibiting the importation to Canada and the manufacture and inter-provincial shipments of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes. We have reason to thank God that the thousands of petitions, letters and telegrams sent to Ottawa within the past year have thus been answered. It speaks well for the high character of the Union government and it will afford extreme gratification to all who worked for its continuance in power that its first undertaking after having been chosen to guide the affairs of state was to legislate in favor of a great moral reform. For this it deserves and will receive the highest commendation of all the RIGHT THINKING men and women of Canada. THIS ONE ACT and we believe it is but the forerunner of many other reforms, justifies the return of the government. Canada will henceforth under prohibition, as never before, KNOW that "righteousness exalteth a Nation."

Women and Politics.

REMARKS FROM SPEECH IN Y. M. C. A. IN TORONTO BY MRS. MCKINNEY, M. P. FOR ALBERTA. What contribution are the women going to make to the political life of Canada? In the past she has brought persistency; she brought persistency into the pioneer life of Canada. She will bring it to the solution of these grave problems. She will bring also her mother love. Why, mother love keeps a woman in her kitchen? Not necessarily. It leads her to build a home and to see that the child in it has its needs physical, mental and moral, satisfied at mother love locks beyond the child when he goes out into life. That is where mother love leads her. She thinks of him when he goes out into the political and economic life, and if he does not fight the evil of today that may meet him in the future, she is absolutely criminal in her neglect.

The Cause of Heart Trouble

Faulty digestion causes the stomach to become clogged with the waste which builds up the acids in the heart and leads to the various ailments which afflict the heart. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will cure the heart and restore the blood to its normal condition. It is the only medicine that will cure the heart and restore the blood to its normal condition. It is the only medicine that will cure the heart and restore the blood to its normal condition.

That is my interpretation of mother love. Women will also bring with them loyalty which may become either blind partisanship or loyalty to great principles. They must claim and keep their independence. Our political life will not be purified until some of the evils are rooted out. Ignorance and blind partisanship stand in the way. One is as dangerous as the other, and the thing that is going to eliminate them is the common intelligence of the electorate and the independent factor in politics. What the machine politician of today fears more than anything else is the independence of political life. If you can show both political parties that it is useless to put up a man of unscrupulous character, you will do much. I believe Canada is worth saving. Women have given their best to fight the world's battles abroad and as will give ourselves to fight the battle at home."

In the Home

Home is the place where a man should appear at his best. He who is beardless at home and polite only abroad is no true gentleman; indeed, he who cannot be considerate to those in his own household will never be really courteous to strangers. There is no better training for healthy and pleasant intercourse with the outer world than a bright and cheerful demeanor at home. It is in a man's home that his real character is seen, as he appears there, so he is really elsewhere, however skillfully he may at the time conceal his true nature. It would go far to promote happiness in the home if all the members were as courteous to one another as they are to guests. The visitor receives bright smiles, pleasant greetings, while to our own we are often cross, rude, selfish, nagging and fault-finding. Are not our very own as worthy of our love, kindness and gentleness as the stranger.—St. Paul Balleto.

Make the Best of It.

Both even played divinely once on an old harpsichord, some of the keys of which were silent. He had the high skill to avoid the bad keys and elicit splendid harmonies from the others. It is the bad workman who quarrels with his tools. In a word, nine-tenths of success is in the worker and not more than one-tenth in the equipment. Few indeed are the people who are privileged to work with good instruments and under ideal conditions. The ones who do well are those who make the best of it. A farmer said to me: "All nature seems to be in conspiracy against the farmer. He has to combat insect pests, diseases in his live stock, beasts and birds of prey, bad weather and exhaustion of soil." "Yes," I replied, "and the storekeeper has to wrestle with fluctuating prices, changing styles, bad accounts, dishonest competitors, and the whims and tempers of people." "Like things could be said of every occupation. Make the best of it. If you can't buy a new suit, have the old one mended. If you can't climb over, go around. If you have the spirit of achievement, hindrances will not defeat you."

The man who spends his every cent of money and of health can never get a footing financially or physiologically. Investing his efforts in wrong directions, they leave him in debt. His life goes on downward, an inevitable failure. The human delirium shuffling along the back street is not simply a financial bankrupt. He is a physical wreck besides. Take one habit into your family of habits. It is a good bred to have around it; it always is good company. Good habits produce good health, and good health produces a clear-headed and good spirit, which in turn promotes a successful and happy life.—Chicago Herald.

Scotty

BY COLIN MCKAY

It seemed to be had been dead and buried years ago. Suddenly—and for the first time in his discolored old age—he felt he had made a mass of life, and a malignant fury of resentment seized him—a desperate and murderous rage against the captain, fate, life, and all the changed facts of his life, as in a revealing flash of lightning he saw the wreck of his life, and his lost world. He had been humiliated, became the prey of a mad impulse to give his passion rein—to fling himself upon the captain, upon the men, upon and it all in an orgy of violence, in a frenzy of ferocity. "What can we do, sir?" queried a man despairingly. "Old Scotty looked at him, noticed the appeal in his strained eyes, and suddenly, with a sharp gasp, he recovered his grip upon himself. Surely he was going mad—what was he thinking about? If the captain didn't know his duty, he did, and he was mate—with some responsibility for the lives of the men. What was he thinking of?" "We'll have to send a line down to them boys," he said quietly.

In a moment he stopped to the deck and, though the waves were over his head, he managed to make his way aft, secure a life-buoy and a coil of rope, and returned to the rigging again. Presently he was seen to be overboard, with the line attached, and slowly but surely it was carried by the rollers across the ship. The boat picked it up, dropped an anchor, and signaled to haul back on the line. They hauled until they got a tattered block with a wooden handle. He came in with their four-year-old boy Dan just before the drive started. It was an opportune time, for the heavy meals and had them over. And for two joyful days the boys a Number Nine dinner of kings of the northwoods dine. For two days they gorged themselves on the rivermen. Mr. Murphy himself went sick with influenza. This lay in bed on the deck raft in the rear of the drive, and Reggy the incompetent entered into his own again.

"The boys were all stopped up at an insufferable dinner. So had it that the men could have taken him out and hung him over the side. He was in a feverish mood, and it needed only the touch of the Chats to make him verbally commit suicide. He was in the middle of a speech when he was interrupted by a sudden knock. Reggy was the driver of the boat, and he had noticed them slouching. Mor than that, he himself slouched. But now he promptly had the incursion of activity.

"Pole, men, pole!" he shouted, fling across the shore sides of the rigging and jabbing in his pole into a murderous lance. Big Donald, Shockey, Green, Jake Wilson, Dacourtelis, and all the rest of the gang hurried themselves at the signal mass of groundling logs that grated on the rocks in the rapidly flowing water. The boat was followed in a chaotic mountain of pine which choked the Chats from gorge to gorge, and the sound of a crashing and rattling of logs that came like battering rams, and through and through the acres of dark tracks on the banks. The water settled and foamed. Poles were useless. Peaveys were called on, and the sweat poured out of the men as they heaved with all their might. The empty stomachs of the men were aching. Hemmed in by a barrier of cedar on the shore the great rocks, the boat was aching. One breathed as in a furnace. "O, for steaks in our stomachs!" groaned Big Donald, recognizing the situation of their efforts. It was indeed useless. A half-hour's wrestling had taken down piece after piece, but there was no budging. The foundation of the jam. The key-piece was buried in the centre. The mass would not pull, and to pick it away would mean the death of the crew. They lay behind the jam, looking like a copper-colored thundercloud. He threw aside his pole, and the boat was in the rear. "The dynamite, you lazy cockney. And be quick!" Showing his usual celerity, Reggy came peering ashore with the death-dealing case of dynamite swinging carelessly from a strap in his shoulder. "What's the matter?" he asked. "He'll drop it, and blow us a million miles. The good-for-nothing dog!" But Reggy didn't. He handed the case to Murphy, who thanked him as he was one terrible look. Yet, unsmiling, hands in pockets, pipe in mouth, Reggy stalked the boat. He set the stick to break the jam. Murphy hit the fuse, and the long pole with the charge attached down into the mass of the logs, and the middle of logs that stretched to shore. They were perched astride a giant pine.

Heads were peering out as he came. "What's that?" asked Wilson. "Where?" demanded the boss. "At you end of the jam. Look. See it?" The whole gang stared. The white blur raised and showed distinctly on the brown logs. "A handkerchief," Wilson yelped. "A platform!" gasped Murphy. "My God, my boy!" He dashed to the water's edge. And fearful of danger the whole gang rose from their places. Big Donald ran to help the boat. They were in a flash they understood how it was. Young Dan had followed the track of logs that stretched to shore. They were perched astride a giant pine.

THE CHILDREN OF THE ROAD

The conductor may have his transcendent train and the sleeping car conductor his waiting hotel, but the section foreman has his six miles of roadbed and steel track and switches has something that these others must envy as they rush past his house beside the track—he has a home to which he can come back every evening to the wife and kiddies. A trip to two story house is it, with a garden on the right of way alongside on which he can raise his vegetables and keep a cow and chickens and pigs. The wife as a rule, looks after the garden as her source of vegetables and small fruits. Once a month she may travel on a train to the nearest city to make any purchases she requires. The section foreman has a busy life. He must keep the right of way clear of weeds, and look after farm crossings, test the crossing alarm bells where such exist, and generally police the track, watching against possible danger from wrecks of iron repudiating work, rails and ties.

REGGY THE COOKEE
By SAMUEL ALEXANDER WHITE

The cook of Gilmore's Camp at Number Nine had tucked out from dinner and had to make the hospital by sleigh-train just before the morning meal. The company had been in the last, smallest, most crowded run of sneaky that ever plucked a lumber camp. He could not cook. He could not do anything else. He had to go to the kitchen and wait. In despair he sent out for his own wife to come in from Ottawa. He saved through proper food prepared by his wife. He had a very good dinner. Men had to have heavy meals and had them over. And for two joyful days the boys a Number Nine dinner of kings of the northwoods dine. For two days they gorged themselves on the rivermen. Mr. Murphy himself went sick with influenza. This lay in bed on the deck raft in the rear of the drive, and Reggy the incompetent entered into his own again.

He paused and suddenly made a beeline for the head of the jam. Big Donald crouched below, ready to catch the tiny atom of humanity if the boss should be in time to toss it so him. He was ready to catch the tiny atom of humanity if the boss should be in time to toss it so him. He was ready to catch the tiny atom of humanity if the boss should be in time to toss it so him.

Keep A Pig!
Food Controllers Hoover and Hanna say that Meat Shortage is now one of the most critical features of the war. They urge that quick action be taken to make up for the shortage. And they point to the hog as the speediest means of doing so.

SAVE YOUNG SOWS
To increase the production of pig, young sows intended for the butcher must be bred this fall. Next Spring's "Keep A Pig" propaganda, aimed at the realization of small towns and villages of the normal average of sale, secured a record demand for the property of all these areas. Showers will be found a business statement from Prof. J. M. Trueman, indicating the probable results. Be sure to read it. Try to plan things so that you will have one or two more sows than in former years.

An Attempt to Bring Buyers and Sellers Together
There may be, in response to this appeal, those wishing to purchase areas for breeding purposes who do not know where to buy them. On the other hand we already have the names of those who have sows to sell and we wish the names of others. If you are a sinner, a prospective buyer or seller and do not know of anyone who you can do business with, please send your name to Prof. J. M. Trueman, Agricultural College, Truro. He will not guarantee to personally make any sale of purchase, but he will try to bring prospective buyers and sellers together. Write him at once.
