ACUTE NERVOUS EXHAUSTION

All Treatments Proved Useless Until He Tried "FRUIT-A-LIVES".

MR. J. S. DELGATY.

R.R. No. 4, Gilbert Plains, Man.

"In the year 1910, I had Nervous Prostration in its worst form; was reduced in weight from 170 pounds to 115 pounds.

The doctors had no hope of my recovery, and every medicine I tried proved useless until a friend induced me to take "Fruit-a-lives".

I began to mend almost at once; after using this fruit medicine for 3 or 4 months, I was back to my normal state of health.

I never had such good health for twenty years as I have enjoyed the last six years. We are never without a box of "Fruit-a-lives" in the house".

JAS. S. DELGATY.

Box a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c.

Canoe Mystery Solved

From Toronto Boy to Friend Here Is Found.

HAMILTON, June 28. — Chief of Police Taplin, Burlington Beach, believes that he has solved the mystery of the empty canoe, which was found floating in Hamilton Bay early on Wednesday morning. In the suitcase and in the stolen canoe is an unopened letter written in Whittby by Archie Cutler, whose father is on Baldwin Street, Toronto to a Toronto friend. Whether the youth is returned is not known.

It is claimed by Chief Taplin that the Toronto lad ran away from White. The Toronto police have been notified of the letter.

A Civic Plan For Street Trees

By B. R. Morton, B.Sc.F., Dominion Forestry Branch; Author of "Native Trees of Canada."

It is unfortunate that in so many of our Canadian towns and cities the work of caring for and planting of street trees is not systematically carried out. Instead of having a properly organized municipal shade tree department the work is too often left to the individual property owner with results which are far from satisfactory. The individual is perhaps not to blame for the results. He is spending time and money from which the public as a whole will benefit, but he is working without instructions.

The value of shade trees to a town or city is incalculable. Well cared for trees in streets and parks contribute immensely to civic pride and patriotism. They are one of the greatest aids to the attractiveness of a community. A treeless town cannot be beautiful although it possess many fine buildings. A street of plain tenement houses can be made attractive by the uniform planting of trees to break the harshness of the bare rows. Visitors to a city are impressed as much by the city's trees as by its buildings, and are influenced by them in deciding if the city is a desirable one in which to live. Trees are an asset, adding value to property. From the standpoint of health and comfort well shaded trees are desirable, for they modify the temperature on the hottest days by cutting off the direct rays of the sun.

To obtain the best results the work of planting and caring for the trees should be entrusted to a special department. This department should be responsible for the selection of suitable species and proper spacing as well as the protection and any necessary trimming and repairing that may be required. It is only where a street tree department exists and has control of all tree work along the public highway that stately, impressive, uniform results can be expected.

Where street planting is to be done the appearance of the street as a whole should be taken into consideration. This is not done when the work is left to the individual citizens. The average owner consults only his own tastes in regard to species and spacing and concerns himself only with the section immediately in front of his property without regard to his neighbor's plans. An error that many owners fall into is the planting of too many trees on their frontage. They overlook the fact that trees which appear widely enough spaced when young may be much too crowded when grown to full size. Frequently property owners will space their trees closely when planting, with the intention of removing certain ones before they begin to crowd. When the time comes for cutting however, the ownership of the property may have changed, and the new owner either lacks courage to do any cutting or does not feel himself under any obligation to do so. As a result the trees grow up too crowded and spoil the appearance of the street.

Looking along the street on which the planting and care of its trees has been left to the individual property owner one finds within the distance of a few blocks a dozen or more species, all sizes and shapes. Desirable species are mixed with undesirable, some sections planted too close and others too far apart. Long stretches will be thinned too high and others branching so low that they interfere with pedestrians and vehicles passing beneath. Flourishing trees will be found intermingling with those in need of repair and rapidly dying for lack of attention. The whole street has an untidy appearance, and lacks the impressive beauty produced only by well cared for trees, well selected and planted.

Look along some of your own streets and decide whether the attractiveness of your own town cannot be improved.

PIG PASTURES

(Experimental Farms Note.)

The loss of the production of pork can be materially reduced by the use of pastures. Under ordinary conditions where a pig is fed on grain alone, it takes careful feeding and a very thrifty kind of pig to make 100 pounds gain from 500 pounds of grain, and more frequently 600 to 700 pounds of grain are consumed. Experiments with pasture and self feeders at Brandon Experimental Farm have shown that it is possible to make good gains at the rate of 300 to 400 pounds of grain to the 100 pounds of pork with the addition of pasture. Pasture cannot be used satisfactorily to replace grain, but it may very profitably reduce the grain consumption by one-third. As the pasture can be grown very cheaply and the pigs do the harvesting themselves, the cost of producing a pound of pork may be reduced 20-25 per cent. This may mean the difference between profit and loss.

There are a considerable number of crops that may be used for pig pasture. The ordinary grain crops such as wheat, oats barley and rye are quite suitable. Sown in the spring these crops are ready for pasturing at the time that spring pigs born in March and April are old enough to use pasture to advantage. Spring rye is the first of these crops to be ready to use. The pigs eat it well and produce good gains on it. However, it soon passes the most palatable stage and becomes more woody as it shoots into head. Oats and barley are about a week later than rye in reaching the proper stage for harvesting but are relished rather more by the pigs and continue in a suitable condition for pasturing for a longer time. Wheat also produces good pasture but is no better than other grains and the seed is more expensive.

For later summer and fall pasture, there is nothing better than rape. Sown in early spring it is ready for pasture about the middle of July, or, if sown later, it reaches pasturing stage in about six weeks from the date of sowing. Pigs like it very well; it produces a large amount of feed and stands pasturing well. It is one of the best plants for hog pasture.

Another good fall pasture is fall rye. If sown in midsummer it is ready to pasture in a month from the date of sowing. It produces a good grade of pasture until severe frosts come and does not head out in the fall.

Perennial crops may also be used as pig pasture. Alfalfa will produce more pasture per acre probably than any other pasture crop. Pigs do very well on it, and produce economical gains. However, it costs more to start with alfalfa as the land must be prepared two years ahead and sown one year ahead of the time it is to be used. Also, its greatest growth is in May and June when on the average farm there are few pigs to use pasture as the spring litters are too small and very few fall pigs are raised. The second crop of alfalfa comes in well for later summer pasture for spring pigs. Pigs root out alfalfa and soon destroy it if allowed to. It is advisable to put rings in their noses when they are pastured on alfalfa.

The ordinary grasses such as brome and timothy make first class pig pasture in the spring months. But, as in the case of alfalfa there are usually not many pigs to use pasture at that time. In midsummer and fall when pigs need pasture most, the grass pasture is often dry

NOW RAISES 600 CHICKENS

After Being Relieved of Organic Trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oregon, Ill.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for an organic trouble which pulled me down until I could not put my foot to the floor and could scarcely do my work, and as I live on a small farm and raise six hundred chickens every year it made it very hard for me.

"I saw the Compound advertised in our paper, and tried it. It has restored my health so I can do all my work and I am so grateful that I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. D. M. ALTRENS, R. R. 4, Oregon, Ill.

Only women who have suffered the tortures of such troubles and have dragged along from day to day can realize the relief which this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, brought to Mrs. Altrens. Women everywhere in Mrs. Altrens' condition should profit by her recommendation, and if there are any complications write Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

and harsh and not so suitable for pigs. Consequently, better results are usually obtained from the annual crops first described.

Pastured pigs should be confined to pens for a few weeks at the last before shipping to market. While on pasture, they take a great deal of exercise especially if of the more active breeds, and as a result grow well and make good frames with plenty of lean meat but may not put on enough fat. By shutting them up for about three weeks at the last, they make amazing gains in weight, thus increasing the profit, and get into a more finished condition for market.

Pigs of the more saucy breeds may be finished on pasture.

W. C. McKILLICAN, Superintendent, Experimental Farm, Brandon, Man.

Much Eye-Strain.

"Rather a dangerous place to visit is described in this paper," said a wag to his neighbor.

"What place is that," asked the latter.

"Well," responded the first speaker, "it's an historical mansion in the Midlands. This is what the account says: 'On first entering the hall, the visitor's eye is caught by a long sword over one side of the mantel, and then drawn to the old flint-lock on the other side; after which it naturally falls on the mantel, and then drawn to the old brick-tiled hearth.' Neither of my eyes would stand that sort of thing!"
