Large Market and Provision Store

ESTABLISHED ON BELL ISLAND.

Bell Island Co-Operative Co. Open for Business.

The Bell Island Co-Operative Company—a concern recently capitalized amongst the residents and working class of Bell Island—has opened its doors to the public and will conduct an up-to-date meat and fish market, where meats and fish will always be on hand, together with all fruits and vegetables in season; while provisions and groceries of all descriptions will be kept in stock. In taking this forward step the promoters of this concern are doing much for Bell Island where such a market was badly needed. Mr. Michael Sweeney, well known in St. John's as butcher with the firm of Connolly's, has been secured as meat-cutter for this concern while the store will be under the management of Mr. Samuel Lodge. We understand that this Company has a representative and financial backing, and going into this business on such a large scale will no doubt capture much of the trade of the Island. A special delivery van where fish and meat will be kept on ice until the article has been delivered at the door of the purchaser has been secured. The premises is located at the Mines near the plant of the D. I. & S. Co.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office—its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland. ad17.1

Becker Guilty of Murder.

Jury Decide Verdict on First Ballot—His Counsel Will Make an Effort to Secure an Appeal.

New York, May 23.—On the first ballot yesterday, former Police Lieut. Becker was found guilty of murder in the first degree for the murder of Herman Rosenthal. The ballot was taken almost immediately after the jurors returned from lunch at an uptown hotel, where they went as soon as Supreme Court Justice Seabury finished his charge. It was unanimous for conviction.

They had agreed that the corroboration which the District Attorney failed to present at the first trial to support the stories of Rose, Vallon and Webber, the three accomplices who turned informers, had been furnished by the new witnesses at the second.

"It's all right," he told her. "Don't worry, I will free me."
Becker walked briskly to the rail, facing Justice Seabury, and gripped it with both hands.

Clerk Penney asked the jury to rise. "Foreman," he said, "have you reached a verdict?" Blagden, a young man, blonde and slim, brushed his eyes with a handkerchief, already damp. "We have," he said, softly. "We find the defendant guilty as charged in the indictment—guilty of murder in the first degree."

Becker's face was grey as he gripped the bar in front of him with all his strength. The big muscles in his neck jumped out in heavy rolls. The veins at his temples swelled. His great frame swayed and dropped, then with quick control he became himself again.

Becker stood motionless while the usual questions were being put to the jurors. Immediately upon their conclusion the clerk began to take Becker's pedigree.

The defendant was granted a short meeting with his wife. Her brother had advised her of the verdict; she collapsed completely, and was still sobbing when her husband was led into the room. She threw her arms around his neck and buried her face on his shoulders. "Oh," she cried, "Charlie, I'm so sorry, so sorry. I did not expect it." She could say no more. Becker stood looking down at her as she wept.

Handcuffs were then locked around his wrists; he was taken to the other side of the building across the Bridge of Sighs and into the Tombs.
