example they are leaving to the future members of the Sodality, is an evidence of the fruit that will be gathered by and from the seeds that are now sown by this first and faithful little band.

Finally, and what you appreciate most, is the abiding presence of Our Lord in the most Holy Sacrament of the altar, which privilege is yours to enjoy, now, in your own little Church, and which blessing I hope you will never lose. This favour, my dear people, was the right of your good Archbishops to grant, and this he readily did on my representation. Pray then that he may be spared to rule long over this diocese.

I must only conclude by asking this same God within the Tabernacle to bless you and give you happiness and prosperity, and in your visits there, it will comfort me to know that there are fervent souls in the parish I am leaving, who will remember me in their prayers before that same altar, and who will beg for me the necessary strength to do my duty in my new parish.

Your generous gift I shall remember with gratitude, and whatever the future has in store for me, the people of this parish shall always hold a first place in my estimation and affection. May God bless you all!

Mainly About People.

It was nearly 39 years ago that General A. W. Greely conducted a polar expedition and for three years battled with the terrible hardships of the North. He now resides in Cambridge, Mass., and his interest in the far North is as keen as ever. No one knows, to course, what will result from all this costly exploring and yet 60 years ago Alaska was a joke that has since netted Uncle Sam $800,000,000 of wealth, and the country is merely scratched. Canada has a far greater acreage of good land in the north.

Financiers have a canny way of reaching conclusions that very often end as facts. They know the peace treaty will soon be adopted. Why? Because Henry P. Davison, the most active member of the Morgan banking house, has sailed for the other side. On Wall street that means more international financing, and that would be poor business unless war was officially declared over.

Gabriele d'Annunzio, whose activities at Fiume have brought him forward so prominently, is the opposite of the old-fashioned conception of a poet. He does not withdraw himself from the world, dream, and grow long locks—he is as a matter of fact, nearly bald, but is full of energy, and throws himself heartily into the world's activities. He was the first poet to ascend in an aeroplane, and the occasion produced a trite comment from one of our foremost playwrights. "Poets are known for their flights of fancy," he said, "but d'Annunzio is the first to win fame through a flight of reality."

Two men whose names the history of the war will ever preserve dined together the other day far from home in the upper Valley of the Nile. One was Georges Clemenceau, until recently Prime Minister of France, who was visiting Egypt, and the other was Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, the defender of Egypt and the smasher of the Turks. Towards the winning of the war each man in his own way made contributions. With his hand on the helm of state Clemenceau guided France through the darkest days of the war and brought her into the haven of victory. He defeated the defeatists who would have surrendered to the Germans, and he "carried out" until the Germans were defeated. Viscount Allenby changed the whole war in the East, and his campaign that in the end brought decisive victory in Palestine, will ever stand out as one of the most daringly conceived and most brilliantly executed military exploits of the whole war. He is now High Commissioner in Egypt and Soudan, and it was while returning north from Soudan that, there in the private car of the High Commissioner, the two war-leaders dined together.

Writing in the Monthly Weather Review, George N. Cole sets forth detailed arguments to prove that the hot blast which swept over the city of St. Pierre during the eruption of Mont Pelee, as well as similar blasts in connection with the eruption of Vesuvius that destroyed Pompeii and Herculaneum, the eruption of Taal, Sakurajima, etc., derived its heat from the sudden compression of the air surrounding the volcano, and not from conditions in the volcano itself. In other words, it was not, according to this hypothesis, an outpouring of hot crater gases that caused the destruction, but the dynamic heating of the air attending the propagation of the explosion wave. Mr. Cole cites a number of interesting observations at St. Pierre after the Martinique disaster that seem to support this idea.—Scientific American.

Address & Presentation.

Prior to leaving the Parish of Fermuse to take up ecclesiastical duties in a new sphere, Rev. J. M. Enright, was waited upon by a deputation of the good people of his cure and presented with an address of appreciation and farewell, and also with a more tangible expression of affection in the shape of a cheque for a considerable sum of money.

ADDRESS.

Dear Fr. Enright.—Words fail, when we try to tell you how deeply we feel your departure from amongst us.

During the five years you have spent with us, your great devotion to duty, tho' often handicapped by ill-health, has endeared you to us.

We have felt during that time that your sole desire has been to improve our spiritual condition by carrying out wherever possible the beautiful ceremonies of Holy Church, which we had never before enjoyed.

We thank you most sincerely for obtaining for us from our good Archbishop, the very great privilege of having in our church, Our Divine Lord in the most Holy Sacrament, where we can visit Him as often as we wish. Only those who have been denied that consolation in the past can fully appreciate all that it means.

When we kneel before that same altar, we shall be very ungrateful indeed, if a fervent prayer be not offered for you, our kind Father and friend.

That you were ever zealous also for the welfare of our children was evidenced by your frequent visits to the schools and by the establishment of the Sodality of the "Children of Mary," from which so much good has resulted. The people of Admiral's have a lasting tribute to your memory in the beautiful schoolhouse that was built, giving their children advantages and comfort.

We ask you, dear Father, to accept the accompanying cheque, with our deepest affection and most sincere gratitude, and the assurance of our humble prayers for God's choicest blessings on your labours in His vineyard.

Signed on behalf people of Fermuse, JAMES O'NEIL, MICHAEL WALSH, JAMES DUTTON, STANISLAUS O'NEIL, JOHN AYLWARD.

REPLY.

My Dear People—I fail to find expression of my gratitude for the beautiful and touching words embodied in your parting address to me this evening.

You have overestimated my efforts to promote your spiritual and temporal welfare. I assure you, I only did my duty and any other Priest would have done as much, nay, and perhaps a great deal more, hence I accept your appreciation as a mark a special esteem for me.

I assure you, my dear friends, a Priest can do but little without the co-operation of his people. In this I was especially fortunate, as you nobly and generously seconded and supported every move for the good of the Parish. You desire, therefore, to have always zealous and devoted Priests in your midst, and I pray that the history of such great men as Dean Dutton and Father Walsh, who have gone to their reward, may be repeated for you in the future.

With regard to the Children of Mary, I am glad to see that the good they have effected is already felt, and the
