Transportation to the Ships

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir.—To accommodate the hundreds of citizens who are anxious to visit the battleship "Hood," why does not one of the Tug Companies detail off a tug for the purpose of transporting people from Topsail wharf to the ship, and advertise such in the daily papers? Some people have been fortunate enough to go by the "Hugh D." and "Pawnee," but it seems that those tugs were there more by accident than design, and it is a very slim chance for people to travel to Topsail and trust to luck to get over on a tug. The motor boats are all very well in a calm sea, but Conception Bay is not the most pleasant place to be if there is any kind of a sea running. There will be numbers of people going to Topsail on Sunday, hoping to get to the ship, and a great favor would be conferred if a tug were in use to take them back and forth. One hopes such will be done, and an advertisement to that effect, with the fares to be charged, put in Saturday's papers.

Yours faithfully,

X.

"Fighting Blood" Tremendous Success

FAMOUS SERIES FROM COLLIERIES
WEEKLY OPENS AT NICKEL.

The spirit of youth on the screen. That's a nutshell description of one of the most entertaining motion pictures seen on local screens in some time—one of the "Fighting Blood" series now showing at the Nickel Theatre.

Produced by F. B. O. from the sparkling Collier's Weekly stories by H. C. Witwer, America's foremost humorist, the films tell a humanly humorous, interesting and thoroughly entertaining story of the struggles of a youthful soda fountain clerk who strives to attain fame fortune and love through success in the prize ring. Mr. Witwer's humor itself is irresistible, but conveyed via the screen by the characters chosen, it becomes absolutely marvelous.

Their quality of youthfulness and the appeal to the youthful spirit in all of us, be we nine or ninety, makes the "Fighting Blood" pictures just a bit different from anything else shown on the screen. One just can't help taking seriously and being hugely entertained by the affairs of young Gale Galen, as played by George O'Hara; beautiful Judy Wilcox, as played by Clara Horton; Rival "Rags" Dempster, as played by Arthur Rankin, and of all the other likeable characters, the counterpart of any one of whom one might expect to meet any day in any American town.

Another attraction well worthy of recognition is the big feature "The Lion's Mouse" starring Wyndham Standing and Marguerite Marsh. The film is brimful of action from start to finish with a beautiful romance closely entwined.

Prospero's Outward Passengers

The Prospero sailed for the Cook's Hr. Service 10 o'clock yesterday morning. She took a large freight and the following passengers:—Capt. Winsor, Magistrate Miffin; Messrs. Richards, Morgan, Banfield, Jardine, Beggs, Boone, Clarke, Small, Lodge, Bursey, White, Bourne; Mesdames Dyke, Cuff and 3 children, Young, Freeman, Kean, Christian, Batten and child; Misses Winsor, Anstey, Saunders, Sainsbury, Garland, Peyton, Boone, Cullon, Hutchings, Vilans, Parsons, White, Paige, Christian. In Steerage:—Messrs. Ford, Cooper, Yates, Rendell, Dooley, Combs, Button, Olford, Squires, Reid (3), Deherly, Curtis, Croke and 2 children, Howell, Farthing, Dwyer, Ralph, Ivany, Morris; Mesdames Reid, Carter, Mullett, and Duffy.

Cosmopolitan to Present "Under the Red Robe"

Film Has Noted Cast, Headed by Robert B. Mantell, John Charles Thomas and Alma Rubens.

The Cosmopolitan Corporation announces that it will present at the Nickel Theatre the greatest achievement in its history to date—a sumptuous screen version of "Under the Red Robe," from Stanley Weyman's famous romance bearing the same title.

The new picture presents a remarkable cast of actors notable on stage or screen, chosen also as being the best representatives of their art to interpret the celebrated personages of history who are the leading characters in this drama—visualizing the most vivid period in the reign of Louis XIII of France.

The statement is made that "Under the Red Robe" represents the most careful regard for historical accuracy in all of the important features of settings and costumes. The picture was nine months in the making, and the total cost is upwards of $1,500,000—an outlay which, probably has not been exceeded in the production of any historical film, except that of "Yoland," the Cosmopolitan production just completed.

All of the famous examples of the architecture of the period represented in the sets used are faithfully reproduced. The Palais Royal at Paris, formerly the palace of the great Cardinal under Louis XIII, is an instance; also the interior of the Louvre. The reproduced castles of the famous historical personages appearing in the picture—as the Castle de Cochetot in the south of France—represent the result of much research, and afford a striking contrast to the architecture of the French capital at that time.

The cast is headed by Robert B. Mantell, John Charles Thomas and Alma Rubens. Mr. Mantell has the role of Cardinal Richelieu while Mr. Thomas appears as the heroic Gai de Beraut. Miss Rubens will be seen as Renee. Others in an especially notable company include Genevieve Hammer, William H. Powell, Rose Coglan, Ian MacLaren, Mary McLaren, Otto Kruger, Evelyn Goenell, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Charles Judels, Andrew Dillon and many others.
