London, Nov. 5. The Prince of Wales presided yesterday over the ceremonies attendant on the ope ing of the new underground electrical railway, which runs about two miles under the city, ending in South London. The road is 50 feet under the Surface, and the tunnel passes under the Thames. The usual English plan of dividing the traffic into three classes at different rates of fare is abandoned in this case, there being a uniform charge and but one tyle of accommodation for all passengers.

New Railroad Facilities in Europe.
LONDON, NOV. 5.—A great improvement in the railway service between London and the continent came in force to-day with the inauguration of a club train service, by which it is now possible to leave this city at 3:15 in the afternoon and reach Cologne at 7 o'clock the next morning, and Berlin at 5:30 that afternoon. There is also a new service extending to the south of France and Italy, by which Monte Carlo may be reached in 28 hours and Rome in 39 hours.

Was the Will Stolen?

ROME, NOV. 5.—A short time ago Signora Aldimira Meis, a wealthy Italian woman, died, leaving, according to her own promises and the testimony of persons who witnessed her will, the aum of 5,000,000 lirs to the Pope. Her relatives and other presumable legatees were preparing to hear the will read bequeathing this large sum to the Pontiff, but no will can be found. As a result the entire property reverts to the State, and it is freely charged that the document has been stolen by persons acting for the Crown. The persons who witnessed the will are ready to testify that they were made aware of the contents of the document before signing it.

The ceremony of opening the road was conducted by the Prince of Wales. The cars and tunnel are lighted by electricity. No tickets are to be sold, entrance being had through a turnstile. Although the road is very short it is expected to be one of the most profitable in the country, and if it demonstrates the power of electricity successfully the same means of locomotion will probably be introduced in the old underground road.

A Wedding Feast Ends in Murder.
GLASGOW, Oct. 5.—A wedding feast in the Italian colony here Monday night was broken up by a murder. While the feast was progressing, an Italian named Lorenzo Marc Antonio made his appearance in the room. He had received no invitation to attend and was ejected. A Fresco of the "Last Supper."

London, Nov. 5.—A discovery of great artistic importance has just been made at Milan. While some workmen were engaged in scraping the wall of one of the hospitals in the city they came upon evidences of a fresco, and reporting the matter to the foreman they were ordered to proceed with a great deal of care. They were rewarded by discovering a copy of the famous "Last Supper," by Leonardo. Da Vinci, which was painted in oil on the wall of the refectory of the Milanese convent of Santa Maria delle Gracie.

The newly-found fresco seems to be an exact replica of the composition as it was originally painted by Ea Vinci, and contains details which have disappeared from the original owing to its mattereatment and the partial restorations that have been made, notably in some of the partyl legible names and inscriptions which are traced on the border of the drapories.
