FOUND DEAD IN BED. CHATHAM, Jan. 20.—Jack Curds was found dead in his bed late yesterday afternoon by a city policeman who broke through the door of his room in the Stringer block, where he resided.

Coroner McRitchie was summoned, and decided that an inquest was unnecessary. The funeral of Mr. Curds will be held tomorrow morning to St. Joseph's Church and from there to St. Anthony's Cemetery.

URGES WIDER INTEREST IN FARM LIFE PROBLEM

INGERSOLL, Jan. 20.—The Kiwanis Club had as their guest at the weekly luncheon today Col. W. N. Ponton of Belleville, grandmaster of the Masonic Grand Lodge in Canada, who gave an address on "Optimism." In the course of his talk he emphasized that temporary discouragement should not be allowed to interfere with the future of Canada.

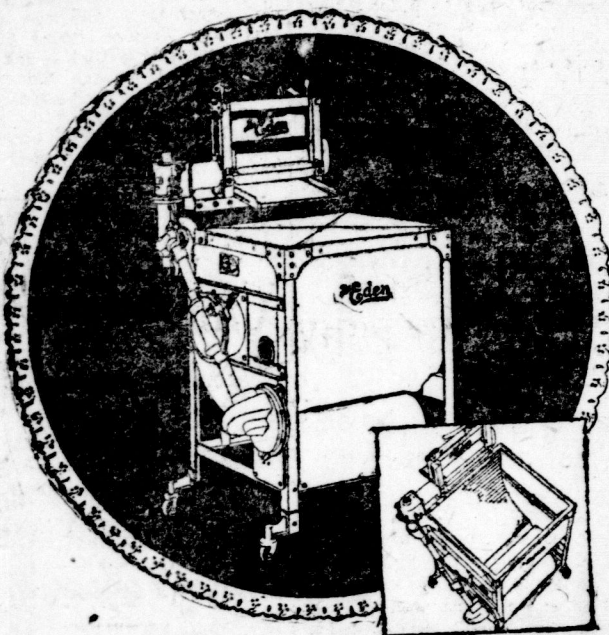

The speaker offered the suggestion that efforts be put forth to awaken a new interest in farm life. Farm conditions, he said, had undergone a great change, and added that this phase of work would do much to solve the unemployment problem.

LOSES FINGER COASTING. GALT, Jan. 20.—While bob-sledding on a west side hill, little Bobby Beechey collided with a telephone post and so badly crushed a finger that its amputation was found necessary.

Mr. Property Owner:—

This destructive conflagration should prove a warning signal in your mind and force you to ponder carefully over the insurance question.

Suppose your place was completely destroyed by fire tonight--would you be in a position to carry on, or would you have to take a position of employee instead of employer?

Is your property fully protected? If not call up one of the following Insurance Agents today. The premium of fire insurance is insignificant in comparison with the probable loss. Make sure that you not only have insurance, but that you are insured fully to cover your loss, not only by fire but by loss of the use of your property (commonly called use and occupancy or business indemnity).
