Call To

Arena Last Night To Inch Depth.

Last night Commander Peary Predger and his Polar expedition sighted ice at the London arena. A big floe covered the piping, and there was every indication that the hockey candidates could get their first initiation by tonight if they were in an overpowering hurry. However, Coach Marsden will probably call the first workout for tomorrow call the first workout for tomorrow night.

The roster is intact, as far as local officials know, despite the story that appeared in the Toronto Globe Saturday morning saying that Jerry Lowrey was on his way to join the New York amateur club, so Coach Marsden will have a big squad to look over. It is believed that Sandy Somerville, former Toronto 'Varsity star, will turn out with the London seniors, and his presence is causing much speculation amongst the fans. Somerville is said to be an efficient performer with little flair for the spectacuar. That sounds like Somerville.

The hockey committee met on Saturday afternoon. Joe Isaacs has been added to the committee as an active member. The members are now: George Little, Joe Isaacs, Bill Haddon, Stan Reid and Bill Marsden, coach of the team. It's a compact committee which should efficiently do the considerable amount of work entailed in looking after senior and junior hockey teams.

Smashing, steam-roller tactics were the feature of the Grizzlies' 16 to 0 win over their ancient rivals. Sarnia, and the work of Bill Wanless and Jo-Jo Stirrett was outstanding. Both are buskies, and broke through the line for long gains on several occasions. Bill Wanless (on the right) smashed through for two touchdowns, while Jo-Jo Stirrett (on the left) fed Foster long passes that brought big gains.

THE WINTER BUD.

He had the greatest speed, the greatest shot, A grace of which Diana never wot -in practice.

But when he got into a game He didn't act at all the same. -so help us!

What was humiliating to Sarnia was merely palliating to London's sadly lacerated feelings.

According to accounts of Saturday's game, Sarnia fans won't know whether Newton's charges have their tongues in their cheeks or whether they are swollen that way.

THE PIED PIPER.

Bill Marsden, who should have been nicknamed the Pied Piper of nockey, from his long string of phenomenal successes in developing junior championship teams off the ponds and open air rinks of Toronto during his connection with the famous Aura Lee club of the Queen City, and who is now coach of the London senior hockey club, has the partial answer to the problems which beset the amateur hockey clubs.

Marsden's principle-it is almost a gospel with him-is that every physically fit youngster is a potential athletic star if given the right encouragement. He has transferred his beliefs, has been the moving spirit in the formation of a junior city league from which junior O. H. A players will be drafted as developed and which he ultimately hopes to prove, will be a consistent source of senior material as well.

Marsden's attempt to successfully transplant his long-held theories to London will be carefully watched by towns and cities confronted by the same problem that faces amateur hockey moguls in the Forest City. Marsden, with a huge weight of evidence behind him, invites the interest for he believes if the principle is adopted generally there'll be no problem in a few years for either the governing body of hockey in Ontario nor the officials of amateur clubs to worry over. Marsden has successfully demonstrated that championship teams may be developed out of nothing. In winning four Ontario junior titles during his nine years with Aura Lee, Marsden's record, taking in all surrounding circumstances, has never been equalled in Eastern Canada. Lionel Conacher, considered probably the greatest all-round athlete ever developed in Canada; Babe Dye, member of the Buffalo International league baseball team and leading goal-getter of the N. H. L. as a performer for St. Pats; John Ross Roach, sensational net minder for the Toronto Irish; Vernon Forbes, equally outstanding as a net guardian with the Hamilton Tigers, champions of the N. H. L. last season; Harry Watson of Granites, world's amateur hockey champions and considered by many to be the finest wing player in hockey, and Lou Hudson, University of Toronto star, are a few of the outstanding athletes who have graduated from a championship class as "Shrimp" Mac-Pherson and "Yip" Foster, both now with London, were with his 1924-25 phasized again in the fact that Alfie Moore and Mel Walkem, senior Aura Lee players a year ago, and who have always played hockey for the fatherly Bill, will be tryouts for London's 1925-26 hockey crew. BASEBALL AS IT IS.

Establishment of the intercounty baseball league on an eight-team basis presents an unbroken amateur front to any formation of a class D professional all-Canadian league in Western Ontario in 1926.

Kitchener, which was an absentee from the amateurs last year due to Knotty Lee's ultimately disastrous experiment in re-introducing the city to professional baseball, makes the eighth team in the amateur loop which in 1925 had one of its most successful seasons.

Had professional baseball been a success in Kitchener, the formation of an all-Canadian league would have been a foregone conclusion for the season of 1926, but the experience of the Colts, it is believed, has definitely turned the scale in favor of the amateur baseball. In several cities of the intercounty, notably in Brantford, Galt and Guelph, there has been said to be a sentiment in favor of professional basebail of class C or D classification. They were represented as teetering in the balance between pro and amateur, largely owing to the fact that the cycle of popularity of the latter brand of the summer pastime had been played

The unexpected overthrow of the three-year dominance of Galt and St. Thomas teams on the part of Preston Riversides and the London Braves has definitely started the amateurs out on another of these cycles, which box office returns and attendance figures so clearly chart

This situation leaves London and Hamilton in the position they were in at the start of the 1925 campaign, with a choice of dropping out of professional baseball or stringing along with the Mint league. Owner Billy Carroll of the Hamilton club was emphatic last year in his declarations that the 1925 season would be his last in professional baseball, and a crowd of nearly 5,000 at the deciding game of the series between Wetzel's team and London did not lessen the firmness with which the Hamilton owner reiterated his intentions of forsaking baseball Owner W. H. Heard of London has made no definite statements one way or another, apparently preferring to adapt himself to the spring outlook rather than join the pessimistic chorus which always accompanies the close of minor league seasons. Sales had already dismantled Hamilton and the draft will complete the wreck of Buzz Wetzel's fourth pennant winner in the Michigan-Ontario league. Mike Baker will also have to assemble a brand new machine, for it is practically assured that the draft will take most of the London players. Coogan leading pitcher of the league, with 26 wins and two more added in the championship series between London and Hamilton, was not sold and he with Harris, who was in the first flight

They will meet Owen Sound in the next round

The visitors were outplayed in every department of the game, having no tactics that stacked up effectively against the local manoeuvres. At no time during the four quarters was play confined to Guelph territory, the locals forcing the battle into the Kitchener lot throughout. Although Boehmer, who played center half for the Orange and Black, punted well, the Guelph backfield on the whole was much better, and the linemen proved more than a match for the visiting team with their whole-hearted plunging.

Despite the one-sided tally, the game was an extremely interesting one. Several long runs by Valeriote and Atcheson for the locals and a few effective jaunts by McKay, the Kitchener flying wing, featured the struggle. In the final quarter, Valeriote provided the feature of the afternoon, taking the plgskin at midfield and tearing around the end close to the boundary and leaving several ambitious tacklers in the mud behind him, went over the chalk for a touchdown, which was prettily converted by Atcheson.

The Guelph team's extended runs and passes were daring, but not once did a long pass go astray or drop to be picked up by the visitors. Their trick plays fooled the K. and W. squad repeatedly, and despite the fact that the locals gave away from five to ten pounds per man, they completely outgeneralled their opponents. The score in quarters was: 1—0.15—0.24—0.24—0.45—0.44—0.54 Checket better the content of the round.
