PROTECT YOUR VOTE

It is necessary that every person qualified to vote on April 18 shall make it his personal business to protect his franchise if his name is not already on the voters' list.

Every person in the Province who voted on the Referendum or in the Provincial elections of 1919 is absolutely entitled to cast his ballot on April 18, and may be certain without inquiry that his name is on the list for the division in which he last voted.

Every man or woman who had no vote in 1919 who is 21 years of age and a British subject and has lived in Ontario for two months and in Canada for one year should attend the place of registration provided in the place where he lives and have his name placed on the list.

Only those residing in the rural districts, outside of cities, towns and villages, are spared this inconvenience. The rural voter is entitled to a ballot at the polling booth on polling day if a voter at the same subdivision appears with him and vouches for his qualifications.

The voter who is on the list but has moved from one urban subdivision to another, or from a rural subdivision to an urban one, since the vote of 1919 may be placed on the list of the subdivision in which he resides by appearing before the Revising Officer, but he need not and should not do so if the distance is such that he can readily vote in his former subdivision.

In Watford the registration must be made not later than next Saturday, April 2nd, in the basement of the Public Library. W. S. Fuller is the revising officer and will be present at 10 in the morning and 2 in the afternoon.

PURE BRED POULTRY

Wallaceburg, March 28, 1921. To the Editor of the Guide-Advocate, Watford.

Dear Sir:— If you will allow me a short space in your valuable paper I would like to write a few words in regard to poultry raising in Canada.

What I refer to is utility advertisers who think a hen with the resemblance of a breed is fit to sell stock or eggs from as a certain breed for instance, a man buys utility Bred Rock eggs from a prominent advertiser. The eggs are about twenty ounces to the dozen, the mature birds are black green in legs, some the size of Leghorns and grey in color, not Bred Rocks at all.

Now I am not citing a specific case but there is nothing, in my opinion more detrimental to the success of the poultry business than advertising and selling utility birds and eggs that do not measure up to the standard qualifications of the breed. You want outside quality as well as that concealed from the eye. A Bred Rock should be a Bred Rock; a White Wyandotte, a White Wyandotte; and so on.

Every bird sent out on sale should resemble closely the standard description of the breed, though not necessarily a winner. "Play fair and win out," is good advice.

Of course all breeders are not faulty but there is room for a big improvement. For instance, a man has a flock of hens, no particular strain, just a flock of barnyard hens. They look all right and he advertises their eggs for sale at a very low price. He can afford to do this as he has comparatively no money invested in his flock. He advertises his eggs at 75c per setting, thus undermining the pure bred Breeder and cheating the man who buys.

What we want is more pure bred poultry and not so much the barnyard hen.

Yours for more and better utility and quality poultry.

A. E. NELSON.

The Easter egg prices went down to 25 cents in some parts of Ontario. In Chicago it touched 19c.

SUCCESS IN BASEBALL GREATER THAN IN BUSINESS

Heywood Brown in a recent article says that in no business or occupation, or art are the chances for early success so great as in baseball. No business has such an organization for discovering new talent. He mentions the case of four young men living in a Texas town. One was Rube, a baseball pitcher, another was Harry, a bent towards engineering; Donald with literary tastes, and Tom a born executive. When he was nineteen Rube pitched a fine game for a local team, and was picked up by the Sacramento club and by the time he was twenty-one had reached New York and his name was known to millions.

The other three remain in the little town. One is chief mechanic in a garage; another is night clerk in a hotel; Donald is a newspaper reporter, and has written a play called "Hearts Adrift" which he is endeavoring, so far without success, to induce somebody to read and produce. Each of them had as much talent in his own special sphere as Rube. Yet none of them was given the brilliant opportunity to make good. Nobody is scouting for playwrights, for business executives, or for engineering geniuses. In time any or all of them may succeed, and if so the success is likely to be more permanent than that of a baseball player.

But whereas fame and success came to Rube when he was a youth, and with hardly a struggle on his part, they are not likely to overtake the other on the sunny side of middle age, and then only after a long hard struggle and plenty of luck. If a man is a superlative baseball player he does not have to struggle for recognition. The professional baseball teams are always on the lookout for talent. They keep scouts to hunt out likely prospects. One New York team has four scouts. The result is that promising players do not have to beg for opportunities to show their abilities like promising young playwrights, for instance. The urging will come from the other side. Babe Ruth, the best drawing card in baseball, was dug out of an industrial school where he had been committed, by Jack Dunn, manager of the Baltimore team. Dunn had to legally adopt him before he could be secured. It would seem that even in the depths of a penal institution if a youth showed baseball promise he would be sought for probably released and presented with a handsome salary.

DEATH OF ALEX. C. KEMP

Carlyle, March 8th.—A feeling of deep gloom passed over the town of Carlyle on Thursday, when word was received of the death of Alex. C. Kemp, a pioneer business man of the town. The late Mr. Kemp, who has conducted a confectionery and bakery business for the past nineteen years, was 62 years of age. He was one of Carlyle's most respected citizens. The deceased was taken to Regina on March 1st. by Dr. C. H. Stapleford, and was operated on the same evening for appendicitis. He survived the operation and until Thursday morning was making progress towards recovery, when he was seized with a paralytic stroke and died the same afternoon.

The funeral on Sunday, which was largely attended, was conducted by the members of the I.O.O.F. lodge, of which the deceased was a member, in the Presbyterian church. Three members of the Royal Mounted Police stood at attention at the church entrance during the hour of worship, and afterwards headed the funeral procession to the Glenmorris cemetery.

The floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held. There were wreaths from the business men, the Oddfellows, the Foresters, a cross from the boys club and a spray from the Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church.

He leaves to mourn him, three children, Alma at home, Mrs. Adams of Radville, and John aged 15; two sisters, Mrs. McIntosh of MacGregor, and Mrs. Wheeler; and three brothers, D. Kemp, J. D. Kemp and J. L. Kemp. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of the entire town and community in this time of sorrow.

In December, 1917, Mr. Kemp and son, John, visited relatives and friends in Forest and around Watford.
