A Struggle For Life

Former Nova Scotia Newspaper Man has a Thrilling Experience and Narrow Escape from Drowning.

The Michigan City (Indiana) News, of July 24th, contains a thrilling account of the narrow escape from drowning of Mr. F. F. Lawson, a former newspaper man of this province personally known to many of our readers.

Mr. Lawson and a comrade named Tryon had left Chicago about four o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, July 22nd, in a yacht, intending to sail to Michigan City. Shortly after sunset the wind failed and they did not reach their destination till day-break.

In the afternoon they started on the return to Chicago. Several squalls were weathered. Suddenly one of great force struck the sloop; the mast broke and the vessel shot up into the air and turned turtle.

Mr. Lawson says:—"I was clinging to the bottom, but my feet became entangled in the mainmast and I went under. After extricating myself I came to the surface and Tryon pulled me upon the keel. During the continuance of the squall we had difficulty in keeping on the bottom of the overturned boat."

Miss Maud Staiger and two gentlemen were driving along the shore on Monday about noon, when they caught sight of the waterlogged boat. They could not agree as to what it was, but the lady insisted that help was needed and the party got a boat and rowed out. When they reached the boat Mr. Lawson was delirious and had to be taken by main force from the wreck. He was taken to a hotel where his rescuers with the landlady nursed him back to life and sanity and he was able to return to Chicago on Tuesday.

"The sea became higher and higher, and more than half our time we were actively under water. Going under one big sea I lost my hold on the line around Tryon and when I came up he had gone further aft. Before I could reach him he threw up his hands, groaned and fell over backwards. I scrambled aft hoping that when he came up I could get hold of the line, but sea after sea smashed over the boat and if he did come up I failed to see him."

"Twice after I lost Tryon the sea knocked me overboard, but I managed to cling to a line. At daybreak I began to suffer from cramps, but seeing I was drifting inshore my spirits kept up and I managed to get into a sitting posture, wedged in so that I could not wash overboard. About 9 o'clock I dropped off to sleep and remember nothing more until I found myself in bed in a hotel at New Buffalo, just across the Indiana-Michigan line."

Rev. R. J. Campbell Becomes Socialist

LONDON, August 5.—The Rev. R. J. Campbell, whose curious change in his theological views recently caused a sensation and offended a large section of his congregation, seems now inclined to enter the field of politics in the socialist-labor interests. He was formally invited to-day by the labor party to contest the next vacancy in the parliamentary representation of Cardiff, but he replied that he could not at present say whether he would accept the proposal or not.

Addressing a political meeting just prior to this, Mr. Campbell declared his conviction that socialism is the practical expression of Christianity as he understood it. The land question, social evils, the first need of the people, he continued, was to get hold of land and to decrease the cost of transportation.

He also strongly advocated secular education and turning the parson, whether church or chapel, out of the schools, "for," said he, "the physical well being of the children is far more important than their religious instruction."

It is noteworthy that during the war in South Africa Mr. Campbell was a strong imperialist, and he aroused considerable discussion by roundly denouncing the workmen as idle and worthless.

Countess de Castellane, Daughter of Jay Gould to Marry.

NEW YORK, August 4.—The Countess de Castellane, who was Miss Anna Gould, has found a worse spendthrift than the little Count Boni, and she is going to marry him.

This was the report brought here from Paris to-day by Edmond Kelly, the American-Parisian lawyer, who disentangled the Gould heiress from Castellane in the French divorce courts. Mr. Kelly arrived in the Atlantic transport liner Minneapolis and said what he thought of the new French aspirant for the millions—and the hand—of Anna Gould.

IT'S A PRINCE THIS TIME.

"Before I left Paris," said Mr. Kelly, "it was frequently rumored that the Countess de Castellane was to marry the Prince de Sagan. This would be a serious mistake for her, as the prince is more of a spendthrift than Boni ever has been. Anyway, there could be no marriage under six months, according to the French divorce law, and many things might happen before then."

"The life of the countess is made a burden because of her reputed wealth. She is even annoyed on the streets by proposals of marriage. From fortune hunting relics of the nobility, and it is no uncommon thing, while she is driving, to have some scion of noble blood press forward and thrust an effusive proposal of marriage into her hand."

IT TAKES TWO MEN TO CARRY HER MAIL.

"Then, too, her secretary reports that it takes two letter carriers each morning to convey the missives addressed to the countess to her place of abode. Many of the letters are from those who beg for various sums of money, but many others are from impecunious counts, princes, marquises and the like, not to mention a few dukes, who wait for her hand and incidentally her millions."

"During the divorce proceedings I formed a very high opinion of George and Miss Helen Gould and admired the way in which they struck to their sister and did all they could for her."

Governor Assassinated

Charities of the Duchess of Marlboro

LONDON, August 5.—The Daily Mirror publishes a story of the benefactions of the Duchess of Marlborough in behalf of the wives and children of convicts. The duchess, it says, has taken two houses in London, which are being comfortably and tastefully furnished. One will be for the wives of prisoners serving sentences and the duchess hopes to find room for about twenty such women, who will be taught laundry work and plain sewing. The Bishop of London is to dedicate the two houses, probably in September.

Another charity which the duchess already has in progress is a home where mothers, whose husbands are serving sentences, may take their babies and leave them from eight in the morning until six o'clock in the evening.

The duchess goes there every day, and it is stated, to complete her work, she is giving up her visit to America this year.

Tragic Drowning Accident at Montreal

MONTREAL, August 5.—Verennes, a summer resort, a few miles down the St. Lawrence, from this city, was the scene of a double drowning accident yesterday in which Shirley Davidson, son of Mr. Justice Davidson, and Miss Eileen Hingston, daughter of the late Sir William Hingston, lost their lives.

The two were out skiff sailing on the river and only the empty canoe has been found. Mr. Davidson accompanied his cousin to spend the weekend at Lady Hingston's summer residence at Verennes.

About eleven o'clock Sunday morning Mr. Davidson and Miss Hingston went out sailing. At noon, when they had not returned for luncheon, their absence did not arouse fears, but later on in the day the family commenced to feel anxious and a search was commenced.

It was not until late in the afternoon that the empty canoe was found, indicating that there had been a tragedy.

The search for the bodies was kept up all last night, but without success. How the accident took place is a matter of pure conjecture.

The canoe when found, evidently had not been overturned. How the two came to fall out without upsetting such a frail craft is the peculiar part of the case.

It is believed that Miss Hingston, who was at the tiller, may have been thrown overboard by a sudden lurch of the canoe. Naturally Mr. Davidson would leap into the river to go to the rescue.

The current at that point is quite swift, and it is presumed that Mr. Davidson was unable to recover the canoe, which would be rushed out of reach.

Mr. Davidson was a civil engineer, and was at one time employed by the Dominion Iron and Steel Company.

MARCONI STATION STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

The Marconi station on Cape Island was struck by lightning during the storm of Friday morning, causing considerable damage inside. Mr. Karpou, who was on duty at the time, was hurriedly across the room. The discharge also passed within a few inches of Mr. Ashley's head, breaking down the partitions and tearing out the window sashes. The bolt entered the ground about ten feet from the station, setting fire to some rubbish through which it passed.
