

“ I promised to publish in “ The Voice of the Precious Blood ” different graces if I obtained them, and they were accorded.”

“ Last spring, the doctor declared that I had a tumour and could not be cured without an operation. I had become so weak that I kept the bed three quarters of the time. To increase our misfortune, my husband spent his days and nights drinking, and I was obliged to send my poor children to beg their meals at the convent. In such extreme desolation, I had recourse to the Precious Blood. I supplicated and implored It so often that I was at last heard: at the end of a Novena, I felt myself altogether cured of the tumour. I promised the Precious Blood that, if I was cured, I would have it published in “ The Voice of the Precious Blood.” I beg of you to accomplish my engagement.”

“ Will you kindly announce in your annals the cure of my little girl who was suffering from salt rheum ?

I subscribed to “ The Voice of the Precious Blood ” and I had a mass celebrated. To-day my child is perfectly cured.”

“ Many great graces have been obtained after having promised to have them announced in your messenger of the Precious Blood.”

“ Enclosed, please find the offering for a mass, in thanksgiving for the conversion of a drunkard (my husband) who, on account of drink, abandoned his religious duties. In order to obtain his conversion, I promised to have it published in “ The Voice of the Precious Blood.”
