CORNER Ammunimmundum P'S AND Q'S.

(Elizabeth Lincoln Gould.)
All little giris and little boys Should mind their P's and Q's, Or else so many, many things Of value they will lose. For, while P stands for prompt and please, And prettiness and plays, And patience and politeness, and Propriety and praise. It also stands for pinch and pry And plague and pester; you Will see it heads perversity, And pert and painful, too. Then, as for Q-it stands for quick And quietness and queen,

THISTLEDOWN, (Lizette Woodworth Reese.)
When the nights are long and the dust is deep, The shepherd's at the door,

Hello, the little white wooly sheep That he drives on beforel Never a sound does the shepherd make, His flock is as still as he; Under the boughs their road they fake. Whatever that road may be.

And one may catch on a shriveling brier, And one drop down at the door. And some may lag and some may tire, But the rest go on before,

The wind is that shepherd so still and sweet, And his alcop are the thistledown; All August long, by alley and street, He drives them through the town. -St. Nicholat.

PRISKY. (Holon M. Richardson, in Sunday School Times.)

He was only an ordinary striped squirrel, shy as the rest of his woodland companions, until Ralph took the notion to tame him.

With a puick dars he would seine the nut placed upon the ground to entice him, and, having carried it to a safe hiding-place, return for another other.

Ralph was not discouraged, however, He did not expect to take a squirrel in one day

In less than a month Frisky had become so well acquainted with his two-legged friend that he would wait patiently while Ralph cracked the nut, and hid it inside his collar we his sleeve.

After Frisky had found the nuts he usually perched upon Ralph's should-er, and once upon his head, where Cousin Ned discovered him one, day enjoying, with evident reliak and in happy security, his moon repart. Ralph then made the joyful dis-covery that his little woodland friend really knew him and trusted him. His cousin Ned, although well sup-plied with nuts, could not coax Frisky to dive into strange pockets or perch upon strange shoulders. After echool commenced in autumit, Ralph used to get up half an hour earlier that he might have time to visit his pretty pet, who was almost always waiting, sometimes upon the stone wall with his bushy tail spreed over his back, and some times upon the ground, whence a loud chattering call would always discloss

MAGNIFICENT MEN

In his spare hours."

In "Winter in the Rocky Mountains" Katharine Sumner pays a tribute to the miners in the mountains From the article, which appears in The Era Magazine, we quote.

"The hardlest and most courageous of the human race are the miners who inhabit the mountainous regions. They spend their lives delving for the gold which almost invariably passes. Irom their rough, toll-stained hands to enrich the already rich. They are used to danger. It is a part of their lives A promising claim, halfway up the monatain side, must not be abandoned because a querter of a mile of thick timber near it has been hurled down into the cakon by an' avalanche the previous winter. They take the chance of snowslides as they do that of warming misst powder and picking out missed shots. Daily they snewshos across the track of avalancies, taking the risks knowingly. Nothing but the event itself will stop them, and then the end of all risks for them. "It is not so much what the mountaineers are in their daily lives that make them remarkable. It is what they are capable of whom a crisis arises. If a comrade is overcome by noxious vapors and fails in the stope or drift, or is imprisoned in a burning mine, or buried in a slide, it is amazing and pathetic to witness the self-abnegation that is shown by the mountain miners. They rush to the assistance of unfortunates, laying down their own lives with absolute disregard. No risk is considered when there is the slightest chance of rescan for a comrade, or of aven recovery of a burned, or mangled, or rosen thing for a woman to mourn

Miss Suddenrich-Oh, see, was, what a lovely picture! Mrs. Saddenrich — Yes, dear, but you must look at it through your lo guette and be pro-per. Miss Seddenrick-Oh, please, mamma, don't make me! I really want to see this one!

That the nervous system is dependable on the blood for its nourishment and life is best evidenced, by the fact that about one-fifth of all the blood required for the sustenance of the human body is consumed the brain and goes to create nerveforce, the vital power which runs the machinery of the body.

Because it forms blood as no preparation wer ever known to do, Dr. Chare's Norve Food is of incalculable value to the necrous system, as well as to the hody generally, Neuralgic headache, aleeplesseess languid, depressed feelings, debility of the stemach and bowels, and consequent indigection, dissy spells, sparks before the eyes, nervousness, irritability and general bodily weakness, are indications that the nerves are starved for lack of a sufficient supply of rich, ted, life-sustaining

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food removes these symptoms, and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, loopmotor ataxia and partial paralysis by its wonderful power as a blood Daller.
