

HOW TO DRESS.

There are coquettish ways of tying on a ribbon and putting on a collar that have marvellous effects. The description of little Ruth Pinch, in "Martin Chuzzlewit," is a very charming one. She had no flounces or frills, but she managed to put on an apron in a way that added to her grace and beauty. I believe that aprons are out of "fashion" now, and if it is so, I think it would be well if fashion brought them in again, for they are most becoming things, if prettily made. After all, we women (excuse the vanity!) are the jewels of creation. We are in this world to fulfil a very high and noble mission. We are here to cheer and encourage, and help to elevate the men who work for us, and who are ready to adore us if we will only make ourselves adorable. Of course, to be adorable does not depend on dress, on outer beauty, but on the inner soul. We are to be amiable, pure, sweet-tempered, gentle, submissive, hopeful, loving—all this does not depend on dress; but dress helps to make us look sweet and lovable, if well managed. It is not the "fine" creature, sweeping through a ball-room, in rich, flounced silk and satin, gleaming with jewels, that captivates and chains the whole heart and soul of a man. He may admire her, and be profuse in compliments, but he does not love her. He does not want a giraffe to govern his home. He says, in the words of one of our finest English poets:

Thy charms may rivalry eclipse,
And all men may admire;
I'd rather have a pair of lips
To kiss beside the fire.

It is the quiet, timid girl, who, perhaps, wears nothing but a plain white muslin and bright sash—which, by-the-by, I think the most lovely and maidenly of all evening costumes—the girl who would blush to wear a low-necked ball dress—the girl who is scarcely noticed among a brilliant assemblage of brilliantly attired and fascinating women—it is this girl, I say, who is the first to win an honest man's love, and is the first to be made a happy and triumphant bride. There is more in the art of dressing than most people think. A lady is found out by her simple and unobtrusive apparel, her taste in colours, and her quiet demeanor. A servant, out for a holiday, and trying to pass for a lady, is very soon discovered by an observant eye, which will quickly notice discordant colours.

Mr. Robert Bonner's monument to Mrs. Parton ("Fanny Fern"), in Mount Auburn, will consist of an Italian marble pedestal surmounted by a Roman cross, beautifully enriched with fern leaves.

Fun.

A Portland man, caught with his hook and line in another man's trout brook, completely silenced the owner, who remonstrated, with the majestic answer: "Who wants to catch your trout? I'm only trying to drown this worm."

A negro in Columbia, Ga., dreamed that he found five dollars at a certain place in a street. He went to the spot next morning, found one dollar, and now he accuses the ghost who told him to go there of stealing the other four dollars.

The will of a resident of Middlesex, Del., recently deceased, contains the following clause: "And I bequeath to my beloved son John the sum of one dollar, with which to buy a rope long and strong enough to hang that Irish wife of his."

"If you want to see what men will do in the way of conformity," says a modern philosopher, "take a high hat for your subject of meditation. I dare say there are twenty-two millions of people at this minute wearing one of these hats to please the rest."

There was a touching experience of a Boston gentleman whose family had been abroad for some time. He met them in Paris recently, and his children speaking French only, he was obliged to go to school to acquire the language, in order to converse with his offspring.

CHOLERA NOTE.—A Memphis man insisted on having new cabbage for supper the other night, and cooked it himself, while his wife talked about the prevailing disease. Three hours after she was wondering whether she should wear black cashmere or bombazine for second mourning.

A young lady of Philadelphia was recently struck with the uselessness of her life, and immediately went to work with vigour to learn plain sewing. At latest dates she hemmed one side of a—in fact, any future husband's pocket-handkerchief, which the proud parents have framed and hung in a conspicuous position.

TELEGRAPHY.

YOUNG MEN AND LADIES desiring to qualify for the numerous situations which will soon be offered on the several Telegraph Lines, are invited to attend at the Dominion Telegraph Institute, No. 75 St. James Street. The mode of instruction followed in this Institute has received the approval of the highest authorities in the country, and the best proof we can offer is that all the new situations filled within the last two or three years have been so filled by pupils from this Institute. As to the success of the method followed here, read the following testimony:

"COOKSHIRE, 21st December, 1872.

"To Mr. MORGAN, Proprietor of the Dominion Telegraph Institute:

SIR.—I hereby certify that only eight weeks' study and practice in the Dominion TELEGRAPH INSTITUTE has enabled me to receive messages at the rate of 23 words a minute, and that I consider the mode of instruction followed as excellent.

"Yours, etc., "S. J. OSGOOD."

The regular course is three months; but, as will be seen by the above testimony, intelligent persons can qualify in much less time. Proficient pupils have the advantage of practising on a regular line, and of being placed on a large circuit.

The terms for the course is THIRTY DOLLARS, the use of the instruments included. All the accessories of the school are new and complete.
