— An important discovery of old official records has been made at the India Office. While the museum was being transferred to South Kensington a large number of documents turned up, and these proved to be papers of considerable value, relating to affairs of the East India Company in Hindostan, between the reign of James I. and George II. It is supposed that among the documents which are numerous, several important fac-similies or even originals of treaties in the principal Hindoo and Mohammedan dynasties of the time will be found, which will afford a good deal of information about the historical entanglements of the period.
