

Only when all the considerations involved in reaching a decision of this nature have been assessed in the light of the Government's policy and its long and varied experience in truce observing roles will the Government be able to decide.