

	PAGE.
port. — White-Winged Messengers of Commerce. — "Damned Sight 'of Curiosity for a Stranger." — A Blooded Grade of Mosquitoes. — The Muscogee Indian. — "Wild Unpremeditated Eloquence." — "Semi-Barbaric Pictures of Homer." — Howling Jews-Harp, the Indian Chief. — The Doctor Disgusted. — Another Idol Broken. — The Noble Savage a Fraud. — The Future of Houston	49

CHAPTER V.

In Search of Saddle-Horses. — A Caballada. — The Wild Steed of the Prairie. — Yells Unearthly and Language Sulphureous. — The Castilian Caballo. — Alphabetical Vagaries. — A Picturesque Plug. — The Clay-bank Pony. — Our Outfit. — The Texas Saddle. — On Board a Mexican Mustang. — A Corner in Corn. — Phenomenally Productive Soil. — Immense Extent of Texas. — Romance in Figures. — Speaking in Italics. — Swearing in Large Capitals. — Invented History. — "Sure, I'm in Texas Now." — Land of Desperadoes and Long-Horned Cattle. — The London "Spectator," and John Wesley Hardin. — Out on the Prairie. — Bucking Ponies. — A Moving Sight. — No Pomp and Circumstance about Him. — Bucked	60
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	----

CHAPTER VI.

The Brazos Bottom. — Money growing on Trees. — The Oratorical Bore. — "Louder! Louder! Louder!" — The Old Plantation before the War. — The Negro as a Slave. — The Negro as a Free Man. — "Right Smart o' Distance." — "Skirmishin' 'roun' fur Grub." — "I ain't no Flossifer." — Los Brazos de Dios. — A Depraved Set. — First American Colony in Texas. — Free versus Slave Labor. — The Story told by Judge Schultz. — An Unadulterated Lie	72
-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	----

CHAPTER VII.

Sugar-Cane and Molasses. — "You must furnish your own Barrels." — Mode of Travelling. — Camping Out. — Unhorsed on the Prairie. — A Woful Sight. — After-Supper Reflections. — Night in the Woods. — A Chorus of Demons. — The Doctor's Mistake. — A Reservoir of Mirth. — A Ghastly Joke. — The Coyote. — Room to think. — A Place to practise Oratory. — Dinner in Camp	82
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	----

CHAPTER VIII.

In Search of Shelter. — "Hello, There!" — The Old Ruin. — The Hospitable Southern Planter. — The Planter's Residence. — The Colonel. — "The Healthfullest Country in the World." — Quinine. — Corn-Bread and Fry. — "When I kem Here in '46." — Game. — Threatened with a Chill. — Fish-Stories by the Doctor. — Piscatorial Lying by the Colonel. — "Chawed up Considerable." — Needing Fresh Air. — "Chills is Nothin'." — The Absurd Potato-Bug. — Man's Extremity the Mosquito's Op-
