

The settler will know that when the Government will sell him a lot that he will have the lot such as it is sold to him ; if he works and between the Limit Holder and the Settler. In my remarks I clearly say that, if we create Colonization Reserves, we should at least give a certain time to the Limit Holder, in which to take his wood away.

I suggested, that before Reserves are created, we should notify the Limit Holder of the fact that, within a certain time, a certain part of his Territory should be taken up for Colonization purposes, that Roads will be made in that part of the Limit and that Settlers will be placed there.

I go further and suggest giving the Limit Holder to a certain extent greater facilities than he now possesses, by calling upon the Government to notify the Limit Holder of its intention of creating these Reserves.

Is there anything in this which does any injustice to the Limit Holder ? Is there anything in my remarks to justify the declarations made by the author of the Pamphlet now
