A Rome despatch of Feb. 1 says:
At noon to-day His Eminence Cardinal logue, Archibishop of Armagh and Primate of All Ireland, had an audience of the Holy Father, by whom he was most kindly and warmly greeked. After the interview, his Eminence, accompanied by his secretary (Very Rev. H. McSherry, Adm. Dundalb), paid a visit to Cardinal Rampolla del "indaro, the Secretary of State, by whom his Eminence was also cordially received. The Cardinal's visit, ad limina, is of the customary character, and has nothing to do with politics or any other matter that is not of an ecclesiastical and semi-private description. His Eminence will set out at an early date on his return journey to Armagh. Cork.

The Examiner of Feb. 1 reports a remarkable case of proselytising at Queenstown. A woman named Bartlett, a resident of Cork, had made an application to the magistrates for a commitment of her two children, a hoy and a girl, to a Protestant institution. While the magistrates were considering the case of the boy the lad declared aloud that he was a Catholic and did not want to go to a Protestant home. The chairman of the bench, Mr. J. H. Campbell, a Catholic, subsequently questioned the mother, whereupon the woman said. "Well, sir, I'll make a clean breast of it, and I have to tell you we are all Catholics, so is my husband, who is in St. Joseph's Ward in the Cork Union Workhouse, which is a Catholic ward there." Mr. Campbell then remonstrated with the woman, and said what an infamous thing it was for her to endanger her children by the manner in which she sated, to which she replied that "want" drove her to do it.

manner in which she acted, to which she replied that "want" drove her to do it.

All the members of the bench. Protestant and Catholic, protested against the evidence of procelytising that appeared in the case, as tending to embitter public feeling in the neighborhood. The woman positive stated that the daughter of a well-known Protestant clergyman in Cork met her at the Cork station when leaving for Queenstown and bought the tickets for them and gave her 2d, with certain directions as to whom she was to go to on arrival at Queenstown. It is said there is a procelytising body mixed up in the case and it will be fully investigated.

The able expose by Father Nicholar Walah, S.J., of the evils of procelytism, and the admirable address of Most Rev. Connaughtmen in Glasgew.

Addressing a meeting of Connaughtmen in Glasgew, on E-b. 7, his Lordabip the Bishop of Elphin, said: They had been flung ruthlessly from their native land and cast recklessly on the world, and under the fostering influence of religion they had multiplied and had borne their national characteristics to every land upon earth (applause). They had only to call to mind how the cause of Irish nationality had been maintained for the last twenty years to convince themselves that love of Irish make as live a trait to day as it was in any previous period of the history of their motherland. Abroad as much as at home the Irish were patriotic. The men at home conducted the war, but their countrymen abroad had supplied the sinews of war. In conclusion, his Lordship urged upon Irishmen unity as the means of attaining the independence of their native land (loud cheers).

Cevlon Teas.

Ceylon Teas.

The remarkable change that has taken place within the last few years in the world's productions of teas is the most astonishing thing in commercial circles to-day. The out-put of Ceylon teas in 1882 was only a few thousand pounds. Last year it was nearly a hundred million pounds, and bids fair before another decade passes, to supply the entire world with teas.

The wonderful success the teas of this beautiful Island have met with, is well deserved, as before Coylon gave her attention to the cultivation of teas, this industry was carried on in a happy-golucky manner in China.

The delicious flavor of Ceylon teas is due largely to the care in cultivation and in preparation, and to the cleanlines that is always insisted on throughout its preparation, but is afterwards packed in sealed lead peakeds, and is therefore not exposed in stores to the various causes which injure fine tea.

His Lordship narrated in interesting style the beauties and peculiarities of the many places he had visited while absent. He referred to the grand old green isle and spoke of the good traits of the Irish. France and its magnificent churches and scenery were alluded to. The Bishop dealt at longth with the ancient oity of Rome and the grandeur of its environs. The Pope and his surroundings drow forth elequent remarks from His Lordship.

The Bishop of Peterborough,

The Bishop of Peterborough.

At the different Masses in St. Peter's cathedral on Sunday before last His Lordship the bishop spoke at some length on his late visit to Rome. In the course of his remarks he referred to the wonderful personality of Leo XIII., who, notwithstanding his advanced age and enfeebled condition, was wonderfully active in mind, and those having an audience with him could not but be struck with his clearness of perception. His Lordship had the honor of having had four audiences with the Pope, besides being present at the bestification of a saintly man in the chapel of St. Peter's, which he described as a beautiful ceremony. The ruins of pagan temples, as well as other shattered monuments of ancient Rome, were touched upon and the many fine churches of the Eternal City were briefly 1 sferred to. His Lordship stated that at an early date he would refer more fully to his visit to Rome and of the grandeur of the city and of the Vatican.
