The object of the movement was to drive a wedge straight through Aguinaldo's forces and there'ry cut them in two, when General Otis would have everything his own way. The Filipino forces were about 12,000 strong and the despatches would indicate that Otis' plans were partially successful, although the American forces suffered considerable losses. The Filipino loss, it is said, was simply terrible.

The Casualties.

The Casualties.

The list of killed and wounded, which General Otis had promised, was waited anxiously by the Department and the friends and relatives here of the officers and men in the Philippines, but it was late in the afternoon before it was received.

Much regret was expressed at the death of Col. Egbart, the only regular officer among the killed. He was among those who distinguished themselves at Santiago, being wounded at San Juan and brevetted for 45 Killed, 145 Wounded.

The American casualties to-day were much lighter than those of yesterday, the total losses thus far reported since the engagement commenced being 45 killed and 145 wounded. Gen. Wheaton entered Malinta, which is a small village of huts, at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The United States gunboat Helena and other gunboats have

In front of the village were strong Filipino entrenchments, but no Filipinos were to be seen. Apparently they had fied. The 22nd Regiment approached diagonally, with Gen. been shelling Malabon, about a mile north-west of Caloocan, for several hours. The insurgents made a fierce resistance to the American advance up the railroad at Ma linta. In addition to the fatal wounding of Col. Egbart, several men in the 22nd In-fantry and several of the Oregon and Kan-sas regiments were killed.

Evidently anticipating a bombardment by the fleet, 1000 rebels vacated Malabon last night, leaving a few to burn the town. Gen. Wheaton's brigade, composed of the Second Oregon Regiment and the 22nd and 23rd Infantry, stretched out along the railroad from Caloocan to the Tulia han River, was powerless to prevent the withdrawal, owing to the natural obstacles and to the strong opposition. A column of smake at daybreak was the first intimation and to the strong opposition. A column of smoke at daybreak was the first intimation of the enemy's intentions, but others followed at various points, all soon blending in a dense balloon-shaped cloud.

Burned the Town.

The flames of the burning rice mills and large buildings could be plainly seen from Caloocan, despite the strong sunlight. By 11 o'clock in the morning, the only building of importance not destroyed in the centre of the town was a large stone church, but even at noon fresh fires were started among the native huts in the outskirts of Maiabon, although the general exodus took place much earliers. Many of the rebels sought refuge in the suburbs of Navotas and Casag, or were driven inland by the shells of the Helena, Callao, Ning da Pan and La Guna de Bay. In the meantime Gen. Wheaton's brigade held the railroad to the river, but was unable either to repair the bridge, which had been destroyed by the enemy, or to advance, owing to the opposition and the hills on the other side.

MALINTA CAPTURED.

There was Fierce Fighting Before the Village With the Entrenched Filipinos.

Manila, March 26.—(7.30.)—The United States troops, under Brig.-Gen. Lloyd Wheaton, captured the town of Malinta, beyond the Tullahan River to-day after a short fight. Col. Harry C. Egbart of the 22nd Regiment Infantry was killed, Prince Loewenstein, formerly aide de camp on the staff of Brig.-Gen.
