

BOERS LOST BETWEEN 300 AND 400 IN HOT FIGHT NEAR BRAKELAGIE

Attack Made on Benson's Column on Oct. 30 and Struggle Kept Up Without Stop Till British Were Relieved on Morning of Nov. 1.

Enemy, Led by Botha, Made Desperate Efforts to Overwhelm the Whole Force—Charged Right Up to the Lines, but Were Repeatedly Driven Back, Each Time With Heavy Loss.

Pretoria, Nov. 3.—Further details have been received regarding the attack by the Boers under Commandant-General Louis Botha last week upon Col. Benson's column near Brakelagie, Eastern Transvaal.

GEN. LOUIS BOTHA.

It appears that Gen. Botha, who had been joined by another big commando, aggregating 1000 men, attacked Col. Benson's rear guard on Oct. 30 on the march and captured two guns, but was unable to retain them.

Who Led the Attack, and Personally Participated in It.

Major Woolfs-Sampson took command, and for defence about 200 yards from the entrenchments prepared by the Boers. The captured guns were so situated that neither side could touch them.

Details of the engagement tend to discredit the conclusion of a military journal that Gen. Botha had ceased to be needed for the present.

IN A BLINDING RAINSTORM. London, Nov. 4.—The special despatches from South Africa refer practically nothing further about the disaster to Col. Benson's column.

It will be seen from the above that the Boers were not only successful in capturing two guns, but also in driving back the British column.

BOTHA'S LATEST EXPLOIT. London, Nov. 3.—(Tribune Cable)—Reflecting men who follow the course of military operations in South Africa are beginning to be surprised at the rapidity with which the Boers are capturing guns.

It is estimated that the Boers captured about 300 to 400 men in the attack on Col. Benson's column.
