indication that the man who accomplished it ought to have a very thoro idea of the milling business.

This is the record of Hedley Shaw, who next week assumes the office of managing director of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, the big Ontario milling concern formed by Cawthra Mulick, the young Toronto financier; Mr. D. C. Cameron, the Winnipeg lumberman, who originally formed the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Co., Limited, and Mr. Hedley Shaw, founder of the Hedley Shaw, founder of the Hedley Shaw Milling Company, to take over both the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Co., and the Hedley Shaw Milling Co., and put up $1,000,000 additional cash that would permit of the erection of a modern 6000 barrel mill, a million bushel elevator and storage warehouses at Port Colborne, the site that all the Canadian milling concerns have had their eyes on for some time past.

Shaw had long been looking at the Port Colborne location and was satisfied that the company that had its principal mill situated at that point of themselves like geage. About all or of themselves like geage.

Port Colborne location and was satisfied that the company that had its principal mill situated at that point would have something on every other Canadian milling concern in the advantages it would enjoy of being able to lay its flour down on the principal markets of the world, cheaper than could be done from a mill situated at any other good point.

No fowls on the farm will take care of themselves like geese. About all the attention they need is to provide the warm shelter for them in the winter and green pasture in the summer.

An inch layer of sand on the brooder floor makes cleaning easy. The dropping may be readily sacked out daily and fresh sand out in as required. But

A peculiar feature in this develop-ontario will be all the more interested in the new big Maple Leaf concern, because its head office as well as its largest mills will be situated in the province and its stock will be more largely held in the province than that of any other Canadian milling company.

Chickens and ducks can be raised to marketable size very readily and under close confinement, but with geese and turkeys a good range must be provided. If either of the latter is raised profitably, they must be able
