

REMOVE RICO TO RIVER PARK HIS DECISION OF ALDERMEN

Parks Committee Favor the Change—St. Lawrence Market Contractors to Be Let Go.

The parks and exhibition committee decided yesterday that it would be advisable to remove the Zoo from Riverside to High Park. Ald. Dunn and Sheppard asked that the park commission report on the advisability of such action and Mr. Chambers had no objection in saying that High Park was the proper place for the Zoo. Ald. Franks said such an idea was absurd, after thousands of dollars had been spent on buildings in Riverside Park, but a motion recommending the transfer was carried on the following vote: Yeas—Ald. Ward, Dunn, Sheppard and Franks. Nays—Ald. Foster and Stewart. A letter was read from the secretary of the Humane Society, protesting against the chaining of the elephant of the Zoo, and asking for a report of the number of animals which have died there within the past five years, with nine issues of the Society's organ. Mr. Chambers will prepare the mortality statistics.

Ald. Foster asked for a report on grading and fixing up the Moss Park property. Mr. Chambers said that the building on the property should be removed. He was asked to prepare a report. Mr. Chambers applied for $4000 to complete the season's work, and the board of control will be interviewed. On Tuesday next the superintendent will be absent for a month and appointed Ald. Dunn as temporary chairman. On Tuesday next the superintendent visit to the sites offered for park purposes will be made. J. W. Woods advocates the purchase of the grove opposite the Dufferin Driving Park. Get Him Out of Contractors. The St. Lawrence market was occupied the exclusive attention of the property committee. Commissioner Fleming reported on the market, with letters from Architects Jarvis and Siddall, the former stating that after granting the work and found it unsatisfactory, while Mr. Siddall disclaimed responsibility on account of his absence. Commissioner Fleming advised that an effort be made to have the contractor finish the work satisfactorily, and that the corporation counsel report on the legal status. Ald. Dunn said he had no doubt but that the city would have the cost of reconstruction. The city architect stated that he had not been looking out the work and renewing it would do. It was finally decided that the contractors should be got rid of as quickly as possible and the work completed by the city.

Ald. Chisholm stated that the brick work which had just been completed was being torn up in four places, for the purpose of installing fountains, the Morrison fountain would suffice for the fountains' needs. The committee later visited the site and the impression made was that the city should take the work away from the contractors as soon as they could have the market opened without delay.

Yacht Club Refused Leave. The Royal Canadian Yacht Club asked for the use of the water lots in front of their clubhouse at a nominal rental of $5 per year. Commissioner Fleming recommended a lease for $1 per foot annually. Ald. Dunn opposed the lease of any water lots, saying that clubs had no greater rights than other people and should not be granted power to prevent others from occupying the water. It was decided that the request be not entertained.

Commissioner Fleming recommended that the lavatories in the northern section of the market should be heated and lighted. The committee decided that the lavatories should be closed after 6 o'clock p.m.

City Engineer Rust, in his fortnightly report for the board of works, today states that the breakwaters at Dan and Downing-avenues should be repaired, $100 for each place would do. Rust reported that the city solicitor informed him that the city is not compelled to construct the proposed break water opposite private property, and that if the city built a breakwater in front of these water lots and prevented access to them the owners would probably claim damages from the city. While the Toronto and Mimico Railway are liable for the maintenance of the traveled portion of the roadway, the city solicitor does not consider that they are compelled to protect the road from damage by the lake.

R. W. Crasby, of Elmer-avenue, outside of the city limits, has appealed for a special meeting of council should be held on Monday next to consider the question of the Union Station appropriation. It was recommended that the city oppose the closing of Station-street, that the building be started within one year and completed within three years. That Front-street should be widened 20 feet, and that the city should engage three experts to appear before the railway commission on Oct. 7 and give evidence as to the value of the land.

MRS. STICKLE STOOD UPON HER FEET AND BLAMED HER HUSBAND

Was Forced into Marriage—Denies Any Improper Friendship With Flick.

Mrs. Stickle had her inning in the assize court yesterday. She was the chief witness for the defence. She told of meeting her husband, who was teaching a Bible class in Hamilton. She was one of his pupils. He seduced her, she said, when she was 17 years of age. She was forced into a marriage with him by her mother, the father and brothers strongly opposed it. She was 18 when the ceremony took place. At that time her mother did not know that any improper relations existed between herself and suitor. Mrs. Stickle, also, opposed the marriage, because she (the witness) had told her and (witness) did not love Stickle. "Who started you on your downward career?" asked Mr. Hales, counsel for Stickle. "My husband did," "He told you mean?" "He taught me badness." Witness denied ever having had improper relations with anyone else. Her husband was a very deceitful man, and a cruel man. She told him she did not love him, and he beat her, and she never had him. He knew this from the first. "Did you have an affection for Flick?" "None whatever. Nothing more than a proper friendship." "Did you mean to marry Flick?" Witness denied that she drank to excess, but admitted having been intoxicated about a dozen times during the year. She was worried and ill from the time she was married. Signs of the transfer of the property from herself to her husband she did not know what the document was. Her husband called her down to the parlor. There were two other men there. She was asked to sign a paper. The paper was folded in such a manner that there was only room for her signature. Witness took a sheet of paper and showed the jury how the document was folded that she signed. Mrs. Stickle denied that she was intoxicated the night she was taken to the asylum. She was worried and ill from her troubles. At the request of Justice Anglin, she signed a paper, and the document was taken to see Inspector Archibald. Flick in a gambling house and then read it.

Witness denied that she was ever boisterous or used profane language. She had always been good to her mother-in-law, and she had never when one of the other children would "and perhaps this is the outcome of it." When Mr. Hales referred to her daughter having given evidence against her, Mrs. Stickle showed much feeling, and became slightly excited. "I think it is a shame that her father should have been so heavy handed against her. What neighbors say." William Jackson, a neighbor of the Stickle, testified that he had been a personal friend of Stickle until he had known her for some time. He had been told to do justice to a woman who had been "dropped down." The two families had been on friendly terms. He had seen Mrs. Stickle a little under the influence of liquor, but never saw her drunk. Other neighbors gave similar testimony. One lady told of Mrs. Stickle coming to her house one night and telling her that she was acting a proper part in her husband's affairs. Mrs. Stickle, Mr. McGregor asked her if she was acting a proper part in her husband's affairs. Mrs. Stickle, Mr. McGregor asked her if she was acting a proper part in her husband's affairs.

Mr. Walker thought nothing of the threat and went to the Beamsville fair, leaving his invalid mother and the trained nurse attending the farm about 10 o'clock. The nurse discovered that the barn was on fire. Word was sent to the house, but the fire was too far gone to be checked. The fire burned unchecked, there being nothing to prevent it from spreading.
