このことのことのことのこと Tales of the Town

Here is a little poker story that challenges competition as far as St. John is concerned.

Various stories have been published of heavy winnings on small and large hands, but to three who have an inkling of the great American game they are usually taken with a grain of salt. But this story has the virtue of being absolutely true, and can be vouched for by any one of the half dozen young men who were sitting in the game. They were not playing for the money involved as will be readily seen when it is known that the limit was very low, and as none of them were presidents of life insurance companies it was not raised. But here is the story. For convenience, the players can be designated

THE INSURANCE INVESTIGATION

Ex-Governor Odell's Reputation Suffers Severely From Dis closures Made Yesterday.

credited, down and out. Plate, the perennial, has seized the opportunity to kick his fallen foe. Odel is nominally the leader of the Republican party in the state, having wreated the leadership from Platt. He is chairman of the Republican state committee. Platt started his fight at Washington, Rosewelt agreeing to recognize him instead of Odel.

As a matter of fact Rosewelt has not spoken to Odell for a year and a half and has the most contemptions opinion of him. Platt came to town today and started open war. It is altogether likely that there will be a complete reorganization of the Republican party in New York state. It is about the most corrupt political organization to Depew and refiging to san insurance lobiyiest at Alamy. Two of the letters were introduced tongs written to Depew and refiging to san insurance lobiyiest at Alamy. Two of the letters read:

"My Dear Depew: My friend who usually gets around at this time of the year has written me several eletters to which I have not replied. He now writes that he will be here Monday or Theseday and desires to have me help him as usual. What shall I do?

"My Dear Senator: Our friend up the river has been very cantankerous of late and wants to know-you know. Don't care a hang, etc., etc. As soon as you can one veniently say, will you kindly do so. Wishing you all the good things of life in this holiday season, I am as ever, yours, "JOHN A. NICHOLS."

Chauncey really din't and couldn't remember who his "friend who usually gets around at this time of year," is. He didn't use Od-life blasphenous "so help will be president, Gage E. New York, Nov. 17—This has been a lively week in the metropolis, with Prince Louis' visit, the horse show, the contest over the mayoralty, the investigation into election frauds and the insurance inquiry. The insurance investigation focuses the public attention. It is the most important public revelation of financial and political corruption in the history of the country. Almost every day adds to the long list of ruined reputations. Ben. Odell was the most interesting figure in this week's proceedings.

Everybody believes Hyde's story that Odell sandbagged the Equitable into paying him $75,000 on his threat to revoke the charter of the Equitable's subsidiary company—the Mercantile Trust Company. One feature of this blackmail game is not so general. It was referred to in this correspondent last spring. That is that one condition of the payment was that Odell should have Chaunesy Depew reelected United States Senator.

Odell had committed himself to Frank Black. He flopped in a night and to the amazement of everybody switched from Black to Depew. The announcement was made in the morning newspapers of Dec. 30th last, that Odell had concluded that Depew would be the better candidate. That very morning, Dec. 30, Odell receivage of the Equitable. The Armstrong committee has a great many questions to ake of him as to syndicate participations, and other matters.

Is an an artery some time ago. Young Squire and other witnesses, under Mr. Hughes' questioning, showed how the former financial manager nad got bonds from the Equitable at a low price and resold them to the society at hand some prefit. The committee hopes to get light on this and other points this after noon.

Mr. Tarbell had only about twenty minutes in which to tell how he had been in two syndicates with the exide that he had been in two syndicates with the case only in his whole life, adding that he had, fought

Would Hang Wreaths on the Door to Denote Death.

(Toronto News.)

The use of flowers instead of crepe for funerals is a subject of discussion among Canadian undertakers just now. In many parts of the United States wreaths of flowers are hung on the outside of the front door, instead of crape, to denote death. The age of the deceased is indicated by the flowers used. A small wreath or spray of tiny white flowers is wreath or spray of tiny white flowers is the taste may fancy. Sometimes, for elderly ladies, a large bunch of English violets, tied with royal purple ribbon, is a pleasing variation. No standard rule nor style for such a decoration has been adopted as the price of flowers in season, the understand, have known F. J.
