the Public Schools writers in 1914, has been wounded.
Philip J. Dwyer, one of the notable figures of the American turf, died at the Hotel Wolcott, New York, on last Saturday, just about the time that 20,000 persons were acclaiming the victory of Boots in the Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park. This was the only Suburban Handicap since the race was substituted in 1884. It was his devotion to the sport of kings that brought about the death of the faithful racing man. When the Belmont Park meeting opened on May 29, Mr. Dwyer braved the damp chilly weather in order to see the race for the Metropolitan Handicap. He caught cold on that day, and the cold developed into pneumonia. The end came when his nephew, Charles Dwyer, was in attendance at his bedside. The news of the noted turfman's death was telephoned to the Belmont Park racetrack, casting a gloom over the latter.

The death of Philip J. Dwyer removes the last link of the Dwyer confederacy, composed of himself and his brother, Michael F. Dwyer, which was one of the most potent factors in racing half a century ago. It was through Michael's time that the best horse with the magnitude of his wagers in those days. Philip was content to race horses for the sport, and prospered so that he was in his seventy-third year, and during the greater part of his life had been an owner of race horses and a staunch supporter of the turf.
The greatest horse the Dwyer brothers ever owned was Hindoo, the mighty son of Virgil, sire of Hanover. At a dinner given to Mr. Dwyer at Saratoga on his sixty-first birthday the dining table contained a bronze of the star. Many of the turfmen present insisted that Hindoo was the best horse that ever looked through a bridle.
The Dwyer Brothers began life as butchers and had amassed a considerable fortune when they entered the racing field. That was away back in 1874. It was regular then for butchers to drive fast horses, and the brothers started out to make their money in the trotter independence. The trotter failed, and the Dwyers switched their allegiance to the thoroughbred. Their first success was with Rhadamantus, bred by the late August Belmont. Later they owned Charles Gorman, the best horse of his day. Bramble and Lake Blacoe were other years rolled on, but the Dwyers in the days in which they had supremacy on the turf. Then in 1888 they commissioned the famous George Kinney, Miss Woodford, and Barnes. The horses of the stable at this time were trained by James Rowe, the man who now conditions the horses of Harry Poe Whitney.
While Mike Dwyer waged heavily on his horses Philip was more conservative, and the consequence was that the one brother died in poor circumstance while Philip was prosperous to the last. The strain of racing became too great for Mr. Dwyer, and he was forced to retire never lost his interest in the sport. A year ago he gave his racing colors to Price McKinney and James Corrigan, and these are being worn today by the jockeys mounted on the horses of the Wickliffe Stable.

Giant Discards Are Succeeding

Rube Schauer, Former Benchwarmer, Pitching in Sensational Form—Former Athletics Also Starring
The sensational pitching form which Rube Schauer, former Giant benchwarmer, has recently shown in Philadelphia would make it appear that Sinister Dick Kinsella's prediction about Rube may still come true. "When I sent this fellow to McGraw I thought I sent him a better pitcher than Alexander," said Kinsella.
Perhaps the brainy Mack can work the same miracle with Schauer that he did with Rube Waddell back in 1902. Every one knew Waddell was a great pitcher, but he was too much for the managers of the Chicago, Pittsburgh and Louisville National League teams who tried to manage him.
Schauer's case is somewhat different from that of Waddell's. While with the Giants he made no trouble but simply was dull and could not be made to understand big league ways. McGraw carried him close to four seasons before giving him up as hopeless. If Schauer can ever throw for Mack, a pitching staff can be constructed around him the same as the Phillies were erected around Alexander and the Washingtons of a few years ago were built around Johnson.
Last year it frequently was commented that former members of the Athletics kept most of the pennant con-

LEADING ACTRESSES IN "THE FOOLISH VIRGIN"

Clara Kimball Young in Picture-play With a Lesson at the Imperial
Fate is a fickle jade, however, and the love affair of this peculiar pair became very much entangled. It all resulted in the school teacher being sadly disillusioned concerning the quantity and quality of her romance in this sort of world of today. In watching this picture one cannot help but agree that the quotation from the author's book which preceded the picture on the curtain, stating that girls who rush into marriage in big cities without being absolutely sure of their ground, are veritably foolish virgins.
Clara Kimball Young acted her part splendidly, although she was seldom called upon to deliver any high dramatic utterance. Conway Tearle (Jim Anthony) also handled his role with his accustomed art and force. The cast was excellent throughout and Director Capellan spared no pains or expense in mounting the play lavishly and with detail. On the whole it was a pleasing performance and quite a relief to see today it will no doubt attract many more people who like current fiction as portrayed by the screen.
Pathe's British Gazette was an especially interesting number, this change containing some views of Portuguese soldiers in an open-air hospital in England, some scenes pertaining to the food crisis in Great Britain; King George inspecting New Zealand troops; the French battleship the Hindenburg; a May day fete in London; 10,000 Boys' Brigade lads in Glasgow and the Boer General Smuts at a presentation function. Tomorrow Robert Louis Stevenson's fairy tale, The Bottle Imp, will be the Paramount feature and it is a splendid offering indeed.
Girls who rush wildly into the marriage state were certainly made to sit up and take notice at Imperial Theatre yesterday when the picture version of Thomas Dixon's story, The Foolish Virgin received its initial showing. Whether or not the lesson taught by the story will have a salutary effect remains to be seen. Certainly Mary Adams, the role played by Clara Kimball Young, was a rather headstrong and headstrong young woman in making her choice of a husband and she had cause to rue the error of her way.
The Foolish Virgin, while not a drama of high tension quality, is a smooth-running narrative in the life of a self-made man and an overly romantic young school teacher. The school teacher was a sort of dreamer who dwelt upon valiant knights rescuing ladies fair from moated castles and so forth, when Jim Anthony knocked down an accosting hoodlum one fine day the amorous school teacher felt she had at last found her soul mate.

Both, also of Cleveland, is pressing him with 14 stolen bases.

What the Film Fans Gossip Over

World's Tours resumed tomorrow, showing Old Villages in Russia, Pompeii, City of the Dead and Zurich, the chief city of Switzerland.
Robert Louis Stevenson's immortal fairy-tale, "The Bottle Imp," on Wednesday and Thursday, with Sessue Hayakawa and gorgeous Hawaiian scenery.
Earle Williams back on our curtain Friday in a double-act mystery yarn, "Apartment No. 29." Talk about excitement—wheew! It's one of those Vitagraph grippers.
If you want to see splendid, gorgeous scenes, happy reunions and the villain getting "his," see the final episode of "The Secret Kingdom" this week.
Perhaps you didn't know that the real genuine and only Detective, W. J. Burns, appears in the feature, "The Argyle Case," next Monday. Robert Warwick, English star, plays the lead.
Get ready to welcome the King of Cowboys, Bill Hart. He makes his bow next week in "The Square Deal Man"—a Triangle feature. Hart is the idol of American women and children. He's the best hero "bad man" in the profession. Keep your eye on Triangles.
Also be on the alert for an elaborate re-issue of "A Million Bids," that wonderful Vitagraph with Anita Stewart, Harry Mory, Charles Kent, Julia Swayne Gordon, Kate Price, Gladden James and other stars. That compelling story of the loveless marriage and the husband that bid a million dollars for his wife's affections.
You've heard of the side-splitting Keystone Comedies. Well, we have them coming very soon. Ford Sterling, Conklin, Charles Murray, the old Biograph fun-maker, and all that crew. More laughter than a barrel of monkeys. Clean, lively burlesque without any blush-inducers. We are banking on these two-reelers for hot-weather crowds—if we ever get any hot weather. The first one is entitled, "Innocent Sinners."
Mary Pickford reached the absolute zenith of her attractiveness in "The Poor Little Rich Girl." It has stamped the cities, big and little, up to date. We have it coming in about a fortnight. No matter if you are in the country, you'll have to come to town and see it and bring the kiddies. It is sweet, pretty, happy, colorful and contains a lot of heart-aching laughs.
Before June is gone, we will introduce a distinct novelty. It is "Country Life Stories" by Vitagraph. Started as a private set of family-life films for a millionaire home, with kiddies, puppies, kittens, domesticated cattle, flowers and all sort of charming household "plots." It was finally put on the market for the world to enjoy. No adult is too big or too old to drink in the innocent fun these real-life pictures will disclose, no child too young to clap its hands in glee.

ALL CAN SERVE

National Saving is Common Road to National Service
Thousands of letters have been received by the National Service Board of Canada from men and women asking what they can do to win the war. Every man and woman can "serve by saving." At no time in the history of the war has there been such necessity for thrift. National economy is essential to victory. Your dollars may turn the scale that will break the German line. Every cent you save means that much more money for the conduct of the war. Stop all but essential expenditures. Consider every purchase before you conclude it. Remember that luxury and thoughtlessness and extravagance are crimes against the state which needs every dollar you can spare. Remember that men are dying for you while you are only asked to save for them. Prove your patriotism by investing in the government war saving certificates. Your nearest money order post office or bank sells them.
NEW ENGLAND WANTS $7,000,000 FOR RED CROSS
Boston, June 12.—A concerted effort will be made to raise seven million dollars during the week beginning June 18 as New England's quota of the hundred million dollar war fund of the American Red Cross. A working organization has been built up in each New England state, with subdivisions by districts, in each of which a team composed of prominent men and women will work to raise the amount as portioned to that district.
The New England committee which will direct the campaign is headed by Francis L. Higginson, Jr., as chairman, with Major Henry L. Higginson as treasurer.
OBSERVE EMPIRE DAY
British residents of Pittsburgh observed Empire Day, May 24, with a banquet at the William Penn Hotel. Toasts to the President of the United States and King George were proposed and prominent citizens gave addresses. Among the songs sung in union were: "Land of Hope and Glory," "I Love a Lassie," "Tipperary," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," "It is the Navy," "Oh! Tommy," "Tommy Atkins," and "Men of Harlech."
