MORE STARTLING DISCLOSURES RE GLOUCESTER WORK

Evidence Before Royal Commission in Fredericton—Mr. Chandler Declines to go into Liquor Matter

Fredericton, July 27.—John J. Robichaud, of Shippegan, Gloucester, was the hero of the hour in Royal Commissioner Chandler's court today. He was a "special" road commissioner upon the laneque barren road on Shippegan Island. He and Docile F. Chausson, the famous foreman of the Carriou Creek bridge, were appointed by the outrageous Martin Robichaud, M. P. P., to repair the road in question without any authority from the public works department. Together these special supervisors spent over $7,000 upon three miles of highway and the way it was spent will never be exactly known, for Joethe's time book fell into a lobster pot and was possibly carried with the lobster, and today John J. Robichaud produced an immaculate time book, without stain or crease, evidently fresh from the book stall, which had not a day or date in it and was in effect, no record at all. The public works department sold up payment on this unauthorized work in December last before Veniot made his charges, but the facts never rose in a minor degree became public property until today.

Went in to Win.
Supervisor Robichaud was assisted by his cook in telling the story. This he swore was his first job and he went in to win. He is a country merchant and supplied most of the men he employed on the road. He advanced goods to them on the strength of their jobs. Many of them have been paid in full with goods from his store. While the twenty-five or thirty men worked on the road and ran up a bill of $2,000 against the province this enterprising supervisor ran a boarding house for them. He charged them fifty cents a day and put the cook and his step-father, who aided the supplies to the camp upon the government payroll, and swore before sat convenient and obliging magistrate and member, Martin Robichaud, in his sworn affidavit that both the cook and his step-father had worked upon the road and earned so much money. As if to clinch his account, John J. the supervisor, added ten per cent. instead of the usual day's wage for his services and that made $238 more. He explained that he put the cook and his step-father on the road because some twelve years ago in Mr. Veniot's time he had worked with some St. John men, who lost much time going to and from their boarding house. Veniot promptly nailed his explanation by stating that it was sixteen years ago been paid for it. The cook was on the stand and swore that he hired with Robichaud and not with the government and that Robichaud had paid him in goods from his store.

Joseph Guignard upon the step father was not present though served with a subpoena. He drove the horse and cart of the supervisor and made more revenue for the latter. There was much evidence to show that the men on the work went to the Tarry convention and did not lose any time by so doing.

The Crown Land Case.
When the witnesses in connection with the roads were through, although there are many more to come, Commissioner Chandler surprised Mr. Veniot by asking William Halden, government scaler, to give his evidence respecting the charge that no stumpage had been paid for the lumber cut upon the Crown Land Lot 29, for 1913 and 1914. Halden discovered that he did not know anything about the matter. He said he did not scale any lumber that year or the year before from that lot, but there might have been lumber cut and he did not know it. It is expected that Mr. Veniot's witnesses will prove that more than 300,000 feet of lumber were cut and no stumpage paid, and that the land was under lease to A. J. H. Stewart, M. P. P., at the time. This case will be taken up again August 17, to which date Mr. Chandler adjourned his court. In not one single case before him is the evidence all in.

A. J. H. Stewart, M. P. P., announced that he would give evidence at the close of the inquiry.
Commissioner Chandler today said he had decided not to take up the matter of liquor men's payments.
"I will have to get my investigation, then, in another manner," replied Mr. Carter. If there were any doubts in the minds of those interested in such an investigation they have been dispelled since Thursday last. The evidence, Mr. Carter said, was such that it would only have been necessary to call three or four witnesses. The facts were common knowledge to very many of those in the liquor trade and temperance men had strong suspicions as to what was going on.

The activities in the interests of the liquor dealers and of the delegation that went to Ottawa to see that a bargain made some time ago was carried out, were all matters of common knowledge. Only recently the sources of large subscriptions, the number of them, the reasons given for the levy upon licensees of the government have come to the ears of the opposition organizer, who knows that his facts are indisputable and dare not be inquired into by the present government.

FIGHTING NOT FOR THE BRITISH BUT FOR HUMANITY

Striking Letter by Maine Soldier in Army in France

PRASE FOR THE BRITISH

Holds Officers in High Esteem—Tells of Fearful Atrocities by Germans as Actually Seen by Himself

Lance Corporal F. E. Goodrich of Hallowell, Me., who, with the Canadian contingent in England and has recently been granted a two months' leave of absence to enter the Hall School of Aviation in London to qualify for a lieutenant's commission in the royal flying corps, makes the following interesting observations concerning the fighting qualities of the British in a letter received by his father, A. F. Goodrich of Hallowell.

The British are holding forty-five miles of the hardest part of the firing line in France; and the Canadian contingent of 82,000 men hold about three miles. The reason we lost so many men was because the Germans tried to break the line which we were holding and it was up to us to stop them. There was no time to rest. We were fighting all the time. I know for a fact that there are over a million and a half of British troops in France. But where Germany has been preparing forty years for "Der Tag," England was very much the reverse and they are just beginning to wake up. We have plenty of men without resorting to conscription yet, what we need and must have are shells and munitions. England is an armed camp. There are plenty of soldiers, but there is no use putting them up against strongly entrenched positions that hold one machine gun to every four yards until we have the ammunition to break a way through for the infantry. And in the meantime it seems to be good policy to let the Germans break themselves against our defense so long as they will. When they abandon the offensive our time will come.

Praise for British.
I've been mixed up with the British soldiers for some time now and I tell you there is not a cleaner, fiercer, better gentleman in the world than the average Englishman. They know how to win and they know how to lose. They never forget they are gentlemen no matter what they do and they are quite right. They are thought to be snobs but I admire them. I have seen the "old" out in France and never met a truer gentleman never lived. They share the hardships with the men and never ask them to do what they won't do themselves. The men worship them and will follow them anywhere. I have yet to witness a German officer leading his men in a charge. They follow after. But the British officer always leads his men and so does the French.

For an example of the average British officer let me tell you of my company commander, Lieut. Scott. He was only a boy of twenty and a direct descendant of Sir Walter Scott. He was an only son of one of the proudest families in Scotland. When there was any risky work to be done he would not shift it off on a sergeant or corporal, but would ask for volunteers and when he had those he wanted he would lead himself. His unflinching devotion to what he considered his duty, and quiet courage in the performance of that duty were something beautiful to witness.

The best blood of England is being applied upon the battlefields of France and the Dardanelles, and if they think they would do it, if they didn't consider it their solemn duty, England did not want this war, and would not have been involved if she had not been honorable enough to live up to her agreement to protect Belgium's neutrality. Roosevelt makes no secret of the fact that the United States was a party to the same agreement, as was Germany and France.

ITCHING PIMPLES ON FACE AND ARMS

Inflamed and Were Sore. Some Nights Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Healed Within a Month.

Shaw Brook, Moncton, N. B.—"Some time ago there were some troubles on my face and arms. They appeared like little pimples and itched intensely and were all red and inflamed-like and were sore. It caused itching and burning and some nights I could not sleep. I took a treatment to no avail. The trouble lasted for nearly a month. So I thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Two applications gave me relief. The sores began to dry up and within a month I was cured without a scar left." (Signed) Miss Clara Anketell, July 8, 1914.

But my views have changed as I have told you.
One day soon after we went to France we were billeted in a small town that had been recovered from the Germans, and a hell of a shambles it was. Across the road was a shack. This was all that remained of a cozy little home. In it on a pile of blankets that our soldiers had left was a woman with both breasts cut off with a sword. Her baby was buried in the garden. It had been bayoneted, as had been the father. She had had a daughter thirteen years old. Her body was found three miles away in a terrible condition. But no one dared to tell the mother that.

A little boy eight years old was found by his mother's side with both hands cut off at the wrists. His mother had bandaged him as well as she could in her condition. Our Red Cross took charge of them. The woman was still living when we moved on.
This is only one case of many I have seen. You can't imagine no doubt you will find it hard to believe. I would give Jack the Ripper points. I have never regretted enlisting. I am just as keen and a hangul's coarser than I ever was. Though I I gone through purgatory already I would like to see it end, but not at price of victory for Germany and allies.
