THE DEAD DAYS.
They sleep, the dead days, in the tomb,
From the world of the living, Came a voice, "Here is room, here is to sit."
Listen to the plaintive crying!
"Here is room for the day that is dying, And for all days in embryo lying."

"Days that are by tempests torn!
Days that are by sorrow torn!
Days that are by sorrow torn!
Here is room with us to sit!"

"Days that are by sorrow torn!

for the brain. If the Delish editor would one day of them faintly, but few of them are excited about it. The teacher has spoken to him, and he only laughed at his happy face. The children looked at him, when not one of them ever saw before, and he returns their glances with love in his soft smile; but as yet he has not told us who he is, when he came, or what his mission. This comes nearest to a real ghost—a daylight ghost—of anything we have had in this city for years.

Where did the Rich Man Go?
Little Johnny was preparing for Sunday school, situated some distance away, when his mother saw one of his neighbors approaching in his vehicle. This neighbor, by the way, was called "The Rich Man," being both wealthy, kind-hearted, and liberal to the poor. Johnny ran out, and the rich man took him into his vehicle, as he was going right past the Sunday school.
It was a very bad day, and so Johnny took off his shoes and stockings to keep himself cool. When they arrived the exercises had already begun, and as the man was going to church about a mile beyond, and had gone to call for Johnny on his return, he concluded not to put on his shoes and stockings again, but leave them in the vehicle. So he tripped lightly into school, and was seated in the class towards the church.

His teacher was just hearing the lesson, when the boy, Johnny, was not acquainted with, which was the fate of the rich man and poor Johnny. Some after the exercises were over, it came to his turn to answer a question.
