Editor's Talk

HOTTER the weather the lighter the reading. This week we present a minimum of letter-press with as many pictures as possible. One department, however, still holds its own in space. Those of our readers who are interested in financial matters will be interested to note the complete information given by "Coupon" in our Money and Magnates column concerning the recent iron and steel consolidation in Canada.

Arthur Heming.

King Edward a few weeks ago created so much interest.

THE varying pastimes of earth, water and sky are well presented in this issue. Next week we shall continue to follow the flight of the flying-men. A leading feature of that issue will be a superb two-page drawing by our special artist, Mr. Arthur Heming, depicting the career of some Canadian citizens who still stick to the old prairie trail in the schooner, not being yet ambitious to fly. There will be an illustrated travel article on old Quebec; a page of pictures concerning the Hague and its illustrious tribunal; and by no means least, but of first interest to the lover of good reading, a splendid appreciation of the late Goldwin Smith, by his friend, Judge Longley, whose article on
