

Dave Coulthard's 26 points lead York to victory

By Bruce Gates

"One game at a time, we'll just hang in there," coach Bob Bain said after his team, the basketball Yeomen, won back-to-back games in Ottawa last weekend to increase its league record to three wins and no losses.

Bain's words may be understating the case just a little, but then in sports you should never underestimate your opposition. Against Ottawa on Friday, the Yeomen actually had a battle on their hands, leading by only 39-36 at half time.

Ottawa stayed close until York pulled away in the final 10 minutes of the game to win 92-72.

Bain thought the Ottawa side "played very, very well," but they just could not handle the likes of Dave Coulthard (26 points), Bo Pelech (19 points) and Lonnie Ramati (16 points), plus strong off-the-bench work by Paul Jones, Peter Greenway and Ron Kaknevicus.

Leading scorer for Ottawa was Steve Juck with 21 points.

If the York-Ottawa score was deceptive, then the Yeomen's 75-67 Saturday win over Carleton was even more so.

"It was not as close as the score would indicate," Bain explained. "We had a 22-point lead with five minutes left, but we sort of squandered it." Shades of St. Mary's!

Leading scorers for the Yeomen, who led 36-30 at the half, were Dave Coulthard with 20 points, Bo Pelech with 19 and Lonnie Ramati with 17. For Carleton, Rick Powers netted 24.

Despite Bain's cautious optimism, the Yeomen do have a relatively soft schedule ahead of them, facing only three or four tough teams: at Cleveland State on January 27, here against the Etobicoke Estonians on February 3 and at the Mike Moser Memorial Game in Waterloo on February 17. The University of Toronto should not be overlooked either because York's cross-town rivals are legendary in coming up big against the Yeomen.

What this soft schedule means is that the Yeomen will have to work very hard to stay in top shape for the CIAU finals in Calgary this March.

Having to play teams like Queen's, which York does tomorrow night at Tait McKenzie, means that the Yeomen's games against the likes of Estonia and Waterloo take on a special importance.

Runner dashes old record

Six members of the York track team took part last Saturday in the second All Comers meet at the CNE. They were led by Cyril Sahadath's varsity record performance in the 50 metre hurdles where he took four tenths of a second off Mark Cummings' week old record, knocking it down to 7.5 seconds. Sahadath won his section and placed fourth overall. Val Sarjeant of Hamilton won the event in 7.2 seconds.

In a bid to meet the national qualifying standard in the 50 metres, Andy Buckstein competed twice in the event and missed by one tenth of a second each time, clocking identical 6.0 second times in winning both of his sections. The overall winner was Anthony Sharpe of the Uxbridge Optimists in 5.7 seconds.

Track Notes: Meet Director Dave Smith has already received over 700 entries for this weekend's York University Invitational Meet, to be held at the CNE. Last year the York team won nine medals at its own meet, five of them gold and four silver.
