

Our School holds a unique position
among the Business
Colleges of the Continent in the Training of Penmen.

THE superior training which the students of this school have always received has been one of our best advertisements, and has won for us first class positions in many of the best business offices. Of course the student must have something back of his penmanship if he expects to hold a position of importance. But good penmanship is even more valuable in the present day than it was in the past. It is a necessary part of the training of a business man, and it is one of the things which we teach in our school. We teach the student to write in a way which will make his work easy and his writing beautiful.

ALL THE ABOVE are given in our course, and the student who graduates from our school will be able to write in a way which will make his work easy and his writing beautiful.

WE KNOW well what our students are doing, and we know that they are doing it in a way which will make their work easy and their writing beautiful. We know that they are doing it in a way which will make their work easy and their writing beautiful.

THEY ARE DOING IT IN A WAY WHICH WILL MAKE THEIR WORK EASY AND THEIR WRITING BEAUTIFUL.

Geo. Thomson, Teacher of penmanship, Acad. Bus. Coll., Seattle, Wash.
Gordon Milott, pen artist with Peninsular Engraving Co., Detroit, Mich.

The above take place in the front rank of America's best penmen and designers.

Here are a number of others who rank almost equally high: A. H. Ross, Penman, Albany, Bus. Coll., Albany, N. Y.; H. C. Beattie, assistant editor Western Penman and teacher of penmanship, Cedar Rapids, Bus. Coll., Cedar Rapids, Ia.; T. L. Stiles, penman and proprietor International Bus. Coll., Fort Wayne, Ind.; Henry Thomson, late penman International Bus. Coll., Bay City, Mich., now of Seattle, Wash.; A. F. Gallbraith, assistant penman this institution; W. J. Elliott, penman and proprietor Central Bus. Coll., Stratford, Ont.; R. L. Gallagher, penman and proprietor Central Bus. Coll., Hamilton, Ont.; W. J. Westervelt, penman and proprietor Forest City Bus. Coll., London, Ont.; A. J. Birch, penman Metropolitan Bus. Coll., Detroit, Mich.; Thomas Thomson, pen artist and engraver with Manning & Ladd, Seattle, Wash.; W. J. Lewis, teacher penmanship, Bliss Bus. Coll., Portsmouth, N. H.; J. Wells, assistant penman in this institution; Charles Cowles, Sec. Peas Richards Print Shop Co., Waukegan, Ill.; S. A. Halsted, late penman and designer, Detroit, Mich., now engaged in mining operations; N. Hutchinson, now a medical practitioner, Waukegan, Minn.; H. C. Francis, penman Big Rapids Business College; A. McElroy, penman Bliss Business College, Columbus, Ohio.

These with many others which space will not permit to mention, go to show that we meet with exceptional success in preparing young men for filling excellent positions in this line.

We have had more demands made upon us than we could supply during the past year for graduates who could in Penmanship.

We have turned out more first class penmen, and have done more to interest the public in this most useful branch of education than all other Canadian Business Colleges combined. The reputation which we have gained in this connection is almost world wide. Many of our pupils to-day stand in the front rank of America's best penmen.

This subject is included in the branches taught in our regular courses and no extra charge made for it.

The demand made upon us now for penmen by other business colleges is far exceeds the supply. It is a matter of surprise to us that graduates of other pen schools are not who excel with the pen. It is a matter of surprise to us that graduates of other pen schools are not who excel with the pen. It is a matter of surprise to us that graduates of other pen schools are not who excel with the pen.
