Pwllheli, 22nd—The brig Lady Douglas, Logan arrived and anchored off the Gimblet, 22 days from Quebec—all well.
 Whitehaven, 22nd—The Nicholson, Kay, from Quebec, at Ullarstone 10th inst.
 Fall—Bristol, Oct. 24th—The bark we reported yesterday as run up to Kingroad, proved to be the John, Curling, that sailed hence for Quebec on the 4th inst. We hear that she has encountered dreadful weather, became leaky and carried away her mainmast and the head of the mainmast; one of the seamen was killed, and another had his arm broken. She was towed up to Bristol this morning.
 Washford, Oct. 23rd—We regret to state that the bark Wexford, of and from this port for Quebec, encountered a severe gale about 700 miles westward of Cape Clear, which carried away her yards and sails, and washed two of the men overboard, named Doyle and Furlong. With great difficulty she put back as far as Cork, where she now lies.

WANTED,
 TWO or three ACTIVE BOYS to carry the TRANSCRIPT.

FOR PUBLIC CONSIDERATION.

NO instance has prevalent infatuation been productive of more deplorable consequences, than the blind concession that the members of the medical profession alone are competent to administer remedies for disease. The general consequence which is given to this preposterous pretension of an interested class, is one of the most prolific sources of disease, suffering, and early death. How many thousands of persons there are, at the moment surrendering their constitution to the insidious inroads of almost every variety of human malady, from their reluctance to incur the expense of consulting a physician, and from their silly prejudice against the most simple medicines, unless sanctioned by the mystic authority of a pretendedly learned prescription! If they could see that prescription in plain English, they would find, in a vast majority of cases, that it ordered something in the world but a little rhubarb or senna or jalap, or sugar, mixed with sugar and water, and mystified with a little peppermint, or some other generally useless drug; and a simple cathartic like this is superior in efficaciousness to the most intricate and expensive prescriptions, and when the patient gets ill again he is again to consult the physician, instead of procuring for himself, at a mere fraction of the original expense, the wonderful remedy which had relieved him. It is that a majority of the population of every civilized country suffer disease to work its insidious way into their system, because the relief they derive from medical aid is at once expensive, transitory, and difficult of access; and thus is exemplified the memorable confession of an eminent physician, that "Prescriptions in the Roman language have indirectly killed more than all the Roman armies." A medicine so compounded that it will cleanse the alimentary canal of all its feculent accumulations and incumbrances, give a new and invigorating action to the digestive functions, and by promoting the incessant perspiration relieve the whole system of febrile and inflammatory symptoms, must necessarily prove a great blessing to mankind, if rendered at a price which places it within the reach of all classes. If it have an extensive sale, it cannot fail to work more cures, and to do so more general good, than all the members of the medical profession combined can possibly accomplish within the comparatively narrow limits of their private practice. It is in this medicine the public has in MOFFAT'S LIFE PILLS and PHENIX BITTERS, the efficacy of which are established throughout the United States, and voluntarily certified by thousands of individuals whom they have relieved and cured. It is in vain that the interested denouncers of popular medicines attempt to include these in their indiscriminate opprobrium—Facts bear theories and are more stubborn even than prejudices. Could the most eminent and successful physician that ever lived collect so many testimonials of remarkable cures, and of so extensive an alleviation of suffering under an almost insupportable variety of human diseases as have been spontaneously presented to the proprietor of the LIFE PILLS and PHENIX BITTERS during the last two years? He believes not, and would be happy to put the question to the test.
 The pre-eminent reputation of these medicines being firmly established upon the basis of innumerable acts, it only remains necessary to inform persons who are unacquainted with them of some among the multitude of maladies in which they have repeatedly proved successful, and in which, therefore, it may confidently be presumed they will succeed hereafter: 1. Dyspepsia, both chronic and acute, under the worst symptoms of restlessness and pain, flatulency head-ache, nausea, loss of appetite, heart-burn, costiveness, bilious sallowness, general debility and wasting away of the body. 2. Diarrhoea, whether ferent, mucous, serous, linterious, bilious, or tubular. 3. Jaundice, both bilary and spasmodic, hepatic, infantine, and of the dark green variety. 4. Helminthia, or worms, both alive and dead, and of every variety, from the large tape and joint worms to the insect larva of the stomach and rectum. 5. Piles, of the blood, the bleeding, the white and the caruncular varieties. 6. Costiveness, whether arising from constipation or obstruction, and of howsoever long standing. 7. Colic, the iliac, the splenic, the constipated, the constructive, and flatulent. 8. Coughs, the common or humid cough, and the dry and the whooping cough. 9. Asthma, the nervous or dry and common or humid. 10. The Breast pang, acute and chronic; and also Pleurisy, or chronic pain in the side. 11. The Daily Fever, whether of the mild, the acute, or the sweating variety. 12. Fever and Ague. 13. Influenza, in any stage. 14. Dysentery, acute and chronic. 15. Rheumatism, acute and chronic, together with pagra, or gout. 16. Marasmus, whether as general atrophy or loss of flesh, or pulmonary decline and consumption, if taken before crises have been formed in the lungs. 17. Scrofula—singularly and rapidly efficacious even in the worst cases. 18. Scoury. 19. Hypochondriac, and all other nervous affections. 20. Spasmodic Palpitation, of the heart and of the arteries. 21. Head-ache.
 It is evident, therefore, that these medicines are compounded of ingredients which act upon the system universally, and not mere aloptic preparations. They act without causing pain, or producing any prostration of nervous energy, but on the contrary, strengthen, invigorate and enliven, from the first day's experience of their operation, for the period of convalescence. Directions sufficient appear upon the wrapper.
 Sold wholesale and retail by WM. B. MOFFAT, 367 Broadway, N. Y. A liberal deduction on cash to those who purchase to retail.
