the number of the fires is very marked, and the present month, from all figures obtainable, looks as if fires took place, 47 investigations were held and it would show a still further improvement. Up to date this month there have been 148 fires, 37 invest gations, 94 witnesses heard ng on and already most people have started their furnaces, which means that the element of danger from fire is greatly increased.

The number of fires of doubtful origin, however are still very numerous, and although much suspicion centres around many of the cases there has not been a single arrest resulting from investigations held by the Fire Commissioners this year.

RUN MANY SEVERE RISKS

London Guarante

There can be no doubt that Territorials and mem bers of Lord Kitchener's Army run considerable risks in connection with their duties in England. The Tew instances" given by the London Guarantee in the leaflet it has just issued, recalling mishaps of varinto.

The London Guarantee certainly ought to secure Asked. plenty of customers for this liberal and inexpensive 581/2 policy. It will cover the assured both in the United 1812 Kingdom and throughout the British Empire whilst 81/2 on or off duty, but will not cover injuries sustained in the course of hostilities by or against an enemy, hor the risk of transport in vessels, nor of aeronautics or aviation. On the other hand, it affords a fairly extensive protection against other risks, as may be gathered from the list of contingencies quoted in the 84% leaflet, all of which are intended to be covered by the policy. These are garrison duty throughout the British Empire; duty on railways and at harbors and docks; all forms of camp duties; drill and field exer- VERY cisces; embarking on and disembarking from troop ships and trains; despatch and patrol duties; isolated attacks whilst on sentry duty by aliens or others. After a perusal of this list it will not be called in

The importance of written notice being given of accidents in respect of which claims under the Vork- FACTORY CONSTRUCTION BUILDING, CON men's Compensation Act may be made is illustrated by a case recently heard at Salford, England. The fact of the accident having happened in this particular case was not in dispute, but its alleged ill-effects did not manifest themselves until a considerable time afterwards, when, as the employers complained, they were not in a position to make proper enquirle into the occurrence. The reason put forward why 102% the formal notice in writing required by the Act was not given was that representatives of the em-ployers had knowledge of the mishap at the time. Judge Garner, however, held that the employers had been seriously prejudiced by the omission, and, deciding against the claimant, who was supported by his trade union, gave the respondent firm costs on the higher scale. Litigation is doubtless encumbered by many vexatious formalities; but this particular rule about written notice is framed in the nterests of employees and employers alike, and neglect to observe it by the former ought not to prejudice the latter.

A few months ago the idea of insurance against mbs dropped from the air would have seemed too fantastic to be seriously considered. But manu-facturers, warehousemen and others in the vicinity of London cannot now isnore the Zeppelin Deril, and AN INDESPENSABLE KITCHEN SINK STOPPER it is not astonishing that there is a demand for in-gurance—which, perhaps, needless to say, is being met by the enterprising operators at Lloyd's.
