Two-year-old Harry had never seen a live lamb, his only knowledge of that animal being derived from a toy one on wheels. While visiting grandpa on the farm, he was taken to the sheep-pen to see the lambs. After looking at them for a few minutes, he looked up at grandpa with a puzzled expression, and asked: "Where's the whool?"

Lump Jaw

The first remedy to cure Lump Jaw was

Fleming's Lump Jaw Cure

and it remains today the standard treatment, with years of success back of it, known to be a cure and guaranteed to cure. Don't experiment with substitutes or imitations. Use it, no matter how old or bad the case or what else you may have tried—your money back if Fleming's Lump Jaw Cure doesn't cure. Our fair plan of selling, together with exhaustive information on Lump Jaw, is given in Fleming's Vest-Pocket Veterinary Adviser.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Miscellaneous.

BRISTLY OXTONGUE.

I enclose a specimen of a new weed that was introduced to my farm this year in clover seed.

Ans.—The new weed referred to is the bristly oxtongue.—Picris echioides. It is an annual, or short-lived perennial, with yellow, sow-thistle-like flowers, and prickly leaves. As it is so newly introduced, we cannot yet tell whether it will prove troublesome in this country. It is well, however, to be on the safe side, and prevent the plants from seeding while the number of them is small.

CHICORY.

I enclose a piece of a weed that came up in the garden. No one here knows its name.

Ans.—Chicory. This is a plant with large blue flowers, which grow in clusters close to the stem. Its juice and leaves are much like those of the common dandelion. It is too common in Eastern Canada, and is becoming locally abundant in Ontario where farmers neglect it in old pastures. It disappears before good cultivation and crop rotation. Well-grown roots have some commercial value as an adulterant of coffee.

ST. JOHN'S-WORT.

J. McL. seeks information respecting two weeds sent:

Ans.—1. St. John's-wort, Hypericum perforatum. This weed has deep yellow, black-dotted flowers. The scientific name—perforatum—comes from the half-transparent dots that may be seen in its leaves when they are held up to the light. It spreads by seeds and runners from its perennial root. As its herbage is avoided by stock, it becomes a conspicuous and pernicious weed in pasture lands. It succumbs to repeated cutting at the surface of the ground, and to good cultivation.

2. The Hairy Potentilla; in Spotton's Botany, it will be found under Potentilla Norvegica. It is an erect, hairy annual, bearing yellow flowers; its leaves are divided into three coarsely-toothed leaflets. While rightly regarded as a weed, it can hardly be called noxious. A year in hood crop will clean it out of the soil.

Veterinary.

ENLARGED PASTER.

Mare got foot caught, and it has caused an enlargement of the pastern joint. She appears to be getting worse, and is very lame. Would it be wise to blister?

Ans.—Yes, blister repeatedly with 2 drams each of biniodide of mercury and cantharides, mixed with 2 ounces vaseline. Clip hair off. Tie so that she cannot bite the parts. Rub well with the blister once daily for two days; on the third day apply sweet oil. Let loose in box stall now and oil every day. As soon as the scale comes off, tie up and blister again, and after this blister once monthly. If you see no improvement in two or three months, get your veterinarian to tie and blister.
