The Remarkable Success of GUNNS PRAIRIE STATE INCUBATOR

is due largely to its moistened Sand Tray just beneath the egg tray.

By regulating the amount of water poured on this Sand Tray you can supply exactly the degree of humidity needed in the air surrounding the eggs at the different stages of incubation. Thus you can prevent the eggs from drying up, and secure big, healthy chicks.

Before hatching begins the Sand Tray is removed, a burlap mat slipped in, and you have a warm, roomy nursery.

Write for our book on Practical Poultry Raising. Besides telling all about the "Prairie State" line of poultry equipment, it gives a lot of valuable information. It's free for the asking.

some lawful recognition of their right to a share of the property which they earn conjointly with their husbands.

Mr. Hobbin agreed to consider the matter, but did not think that a divorce law as maintained in Ontario would serve here, as property to the value of several millions changes hands annually and women would be a hindrance in these deals.

THE MICROBES SERENADE

By George Ade
A lovelorn microbe met by chance
At a swagger bacteroidal dance
A proud bacillus belle, and she
Was first of the anomalous,
Of organism, saccharine,
She was the protoplasmic queen
The microscopic pride and pet
Of the biological smartset set,
And so this infinitesimal swain
Evolved a pleading low refrain:

"Oh, lovely metamorphic germ,
What futile scientific term
Can well describe your many charms?
Come to these embryonic arms,
Then hie away to my cellular home,
And be my little diatom!"

His epithelium burned with love,
He swore by molecules above
She'd be his own gregarious mate,
Or else he would disintegrate.
This amorous mite of a parasite
Pursued the germ both day and night,
And 'neath her window often played
This Darwin-Huxley serenade
He'd wail to her every day
This rhopodical roundelay.

"Oh, most primordial type of spore,
I never met you like before,
And though a microbe has no heart,
From you, sweet germ, I'll never part
We'll sit beneath some fungus growth
Till dissolution claims us both!"

ST. VALENTINE

How the dear old patron Saint of lovers must sigh as he thinks of the changes that one hundred years has wrought! A century ago he was Romeo's chosen bane-man. A hundred years ago the fond lover evoked him humbly, the while pondering for months ahead as to the best rhymes to accompany the inevitable bleeding heart (personally drawn and painted). Not to write burning verses to his charmer's eyebrow or lily-white hand would indeed have proved her woosier lacking in the finer arts of love. With quill in hand, and sand box near, every Romeo burned midnight candle and filled words to the measure of his passion.

Circled fifty years. Again the lover sought upon St. Valentine's day some gallant way to prove his preference. Progress was his ally. For a few pence he might buy his heart (soe pierced indeed) and flaming verses, compared with which his own were rustic drivel. To the stationeer's he ran, to find in lace cages (of paper) love hidden, armed with cruel darts and o'er-burning words. From many, Lovelace chose the gem to suit his cane, thereafter dropping it in the penny-post most gaily.

To-day at St. Valentine's shrine few lovers go to pray. Rather have they the air of patrons who graciously remember the old saint as do they childish myths to smile or scoff at. Occasionally they make him serve, as when they would offer a dame of high degree or maid of import costly trophies or flowers worth their weight in gold. As St. Valentine knows, lovers still love, but not in the manner of long ago, humbly, doubting their prowess and putting it to the test in simple ways. Modern wavers find their days too short for dalliance, for verse making or gentle wooing.

The present Romeo finds a dozen "beauties" or orchids or a jewelled bauble, quite as effective and much more to his taste—and his lady's than bleeding hearts and toll-worn rhymes if he remembers St. Valentine's day at all.

LET WOMEN VOTE

Editor Fire-side:—The policy and purpose of the Grain Growers' Association as explained by a Western writer in the February Canadian Magazine is full of promise for Canada's future.

Everywhere in the old as well as in the so-called new countries all thinking and earnest men and women have realized that we are governed not so much, if at all, by representatives of the people as by political parties in turn whose prevailing aim and object centres in party interests and party expediency. If the farmers of Canada are prepared to acknowledge no party ties and so bring
