Proclamation Issued by "The Provisional Govt. of the Irish Republic" to People of Ireland

LONDON, May 8.—The proclamation issued by the insurgents of Dublin at the outbreak of the revolt reads as follows:—
"The Provisional Government of the Irish Republic to the People of Ireland:—
"Irish men and Irish women, in the name of God and of the dead generations from which you received the old traditions of Nationhood, Ireland, through us, summons her children to her flag and strikes for her freedom, having organized and trained her manhood through her secret revolutionary organization, the Volunteers and the Irish Citizen Army.
"Having patiently waited their discipline and resolutely waited for the right moment to reveal itself, she now seizes that moment, and, supported by her exiled children in America and by her gallant allies in Europe, but relying on her own strength, she strikes, in full confidence of victory.
"We declare the right of the people of Ireland to the ownership of Ireland and to unfettered control of Irish destinies, to be sovereign and undefeasible. Long usurpation of that right by a foreign people and government has not extinguished except by the destruction of the Irish people.
"In every generation the Irish people have asserted their right to a national reedom and sovereignty. Six times during the past 300 years they have asserted it in arms. Standing on that fundamental right and again asserting it in arms in the face of the world, we hereby proclaim the Irish Republic as a sovereign independent state, and we pledge our lives and the lives of our comrades in arms to the cause of its freedom, its welfare and its exaltation among nations.
"The Irish Republic is entitled to and hereby claims, the allegiance of every Irishman and Irish woman. The Republic guarantees religious and civil liberty, equal rights and opportunities to all its citizens, and declares its resolve to pursue the happiness and prosperity of the whole nation and of all its parts, cherishing all the children of the nation equally and oblivious of the differences carefully fostered by an alien government, which have divided the minority from the majority in the past.
"Until our arms have brought the opportune moment for the establishment of a permanent national government, representative of the whole people of Ireland elected by the suffrages of all her men and women, the Provisional Government hereby constituted, will administer the civil and military affairs of the Republic in trust for the people.
"We place the cause of the Irish Republic under the protection of the Most High God, whose blessing we invoke upon our arms, and we pray that no one who serves that cause will dishonour it by cowardice, inhumanity or rapine. In this supreme hour the Irish nation must by its valor and discipline and by the readiness of its children to sacrifice themselves for the common good, prove itself worthy of the august destiny to which it is called.
Signed on behalf of the Provisional Government:—
"Thomas J. Clarke, S. MacDiarmid, Thos. MacDonagh, J. H. Pearse, F. Ceannt, James Connolly, Jos. Plunkett."
Nearing The Limit.
Her Father—Can you give my daughter all the little luxuries to which she is accustomed?
Her Lover—Not much longer, I've been doing it for over a year now, you know.
"The Irish Republic is entitled to and hereby claims, the allegiance of every Irishman and Irish woman. The Republic guarantees religious

STORY OF THE SINN FEIN UPRISING IN ENNISCORTHY

LONDON, May 8.—The story of the principal buildings of the town and uprising in Enniscorthy is similar to converted it into headquarters for that in Dublin, but it was carried out on a smaller scale. At two o'clock Thursday morning 200 Sinn Feiners seized the Athenaeum, one of the recruits and the republican flag was hoisted on headquarters. The telegraph and telephone lines were cut and the railway tracks torn up, thus severing communication with the outside world. A proclamation was issued that the town was in the hands of the republicans, all the public houses were guarded and business was stopped, except the bakeries and such work as was required for the rebels.

Fighting began between seven and eight o'clock. The insurgents stormed the constabulary barracks but failed to take it, and several other attempts to capture the barracks met with no greater success. Otherwise the town was virtually in their possession, including Enniscorthy commanding the town, which they captured in the afternoon.

The Sinn Feiners commandeered all arms and food supplies. A large number of young men were enrolled by the rebels and the defense of the town was regularly organized. The populace, terrified, was obliged to keep indoors.
The situation was the same on Friday, but on Saturday, food becoming scarce, the insurgents scoured the country for miles around. They seized the police barracks at Forth, six miles from Enniscorthy.
On Saturday evening, the situation becoming desperate, and there being no signs of troops arriving, the leading business men held a meeting and sent a deputation to the rebels with the hope of arranging terms. Nothing came of the conference.
On Sunday, after Mass, attended by the insurgents, a party composed of police and citizens came from Arklow by motor car under a white flag and conveyed the news that the rebels in Dublin had surrendered. The Sinn Feiners permitted a deputation of the principal clergy of Enniscorthy to proceed to Wexford, where the Dublin surrender was confirmed. When finally convinced of this the Sinn Feiners agreed to unconditional surrender, and on Monday morning 2,000 troops arrived, took the leaders and began rounding up the insurgents.

PRESS AND PEOPLE

New York Evening Post—In a war conducted by democracy the behavior of the press and the people and the rulers is almost as important as that of the army. And from our present experience with merely a punitive expedition, it is easy to imagine what would happen if we got into a real war. A military censorship has very properly been established on the Mexican frontier, yet it is bitterly complained of, and efforts are at once made to "beat" it. Our war with Spain in 1898 was peculiarly a war for the greater glory of newspapers, and it is hard for some people to get over the idea that the chief end of an army is to be dogged by correspondents, and pictured in the press. Meanwhile, congressmen make querulous and indiscreet speeches, and are eager to wash our dirty military linen in public. We laugh at it all, as being simply pretty Fanny's way, but in case of a serious war it would be harmful as well as humiliating.
