sion of the court when the same case was on trial that the ordinance under which the charge was laid was not legal, in fact, did not exist. The legality of the ordinance, however, was proven to the satisfaction of the court by the testimony of Dr. J. N. E. territorial secretary, who swore that ordinance No. 7 had been regularly passed on October 28th, 1898. The original ordinance, however, had been lost, but to the best of his knowledge the ordinance book which the witness produced in court contained a verbatim copy of the ordinance as passed. During the testimony of Dr. Brown there were many lively tilts between the crown prosecutor for the defense and Attorney Pattullo for the prosecution, the latter having been retained to con-

Referring to the lately passed dog or dinance, after having asserted that ordinance No. 7 does not exist, Mr. Wade asked: "Is this the latest wisdom on the attorney for the defense appeared to be the "latest wisdom on the dog

Wade upbraided Pattullo for being retained to assist the prosecution and Pattullo retorted by saving 'And you, the crown prosecutor, are here to endeavor to break the laws of the country."

The court said such insinuations must be stopped.

Pattullo filed copies of four ordinances bearing on the dog question and Wade objected to No. 7. The objec-Corporal Piper was recalled hars prin-

Kennebec was fined what Superintendent Primrose had said so and costs, yet this case did not to Aikman when the latter had refused elicit more than a passing thought, to go to the guard room and Piper said while nearly everybody in Dawson was the words used by the superintendent terested in the Aikman case as it was were: "If we have to knock you down known that the case was being conduct- and handcuff you, you will go to the barracks." Just what bearing this was supposed to have on the case was not stated. The crown prosecutor and the witness had a tilt about what constitutes a peace officer, the former contending that Piper was not a peace officer and had no more business where he captured the dog than had the dog itself. Pattullo insisted that the peace officer question would come up on the trial on the other charge against Aikman, that of resisting a peace officer.

The defense moved for a dismissal of the case on the ground that the existence of ordinance No. 7 had not been ed the same. proved, also on the ground that a late ordinance had annulled it even if it did exist. The motion was overruled. Wade also claimed that the magistrate had no jurisdiction in the case and asked that the case be adjourned until he could apply to the territorial court for a writ of prohibition to prevent the magistrate from lurther sitting in the case. Pattullo objected to any continuation and also objected to Wade's insinuations regarding the court's knowledge of law. The motion for continuation was also denied. The defense declined to offer any evidence in its own behalf.

In finding Aikman guilty the court

"The facts show the dog was loose and his owner, Aikman, not in sight; also that the dog was unmuzzled. It is not the duty of the magistrate to decide as to the legality of ordinances, but he must administer the law as he finds it : that if the ordinances are not legal, the sooner it is found out the better, but the magistrate must not doubt their legality until it is proven. In this case I find sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction, but I will defer sentence."

The crown prosecutor moved for passing of sentence on his client in order that he might give notice of appeal. A fine of $5 was imposed, A notice of appeal was given. Mr. Wade then left the court room other charge against his client, that of resisting a peace officer. He returned and asked that the case be continued. Near Second St. will be called next Saturday morning selected commodities. Mr. Aikman paid his fine.
