THEY BOTH PLAYED TRUANT

But They Heartily Repented the Frank and Were Glad to Get Home.

"HATE school!" The speaker, a good-looking, dark-haired boy, snapped his book shut as he spoke and leaned pensively upon the desk.

"So do I," came a pretty little voice, and looking across the aisle, Roland Harvey saw Mamie Gray, the prettiest and sanest girl in school, smiling and nodding at him. "I heard what you said," said Mamie, "and I agree with you. School is a hateful old thing."

"Let's play truant to-morrow."

The words were out of Roland's mouth before he thought, but once having said them, he was not going to take them back.

"I'm afraid," said Mamie, looking at him out of the corner of her blue eyes. "Pshaw! you needn't be," said Roland. "We can say we went visiting. I will tell the teacher to-morrow that I went to see Sister Sue and you can tell her you went to spend the day with your grandmother."

Mamie's eyes flashed.

"We can go and gather violets," said Roland. "I know where there's a whole bank of them, blue as indigo and as big as—wild roses."

"Is it far?"

"No—only in Hatfield's woods, where we had our picnic last summer. We can start in the morning before 9 and get back by 4 o'clock. They won't say anything to us at home when we bring them all the violets."

The next morning saw a guilty little pair scurrying along the paths which led out of the village and trying to avoid observation by climbing the tall fences and walking the other side of the bare hedges.

It seemed so good to be out in the air once more. Roland enjoyed it thoroughly and Mamie liked it as well as her guilty conscience would permit.

They were the leaders in all the pranks in school, these two children, and when anything went wrong the question was always asked, "Did Roland do it?" or "Was it Mamie Gray's fault?"

Yet neither meant to be naughty, and you may be sure that neither would have gone out that day had they known what trouble the day would bring forth.

"I guess this is where we turned off last fall," said Roland, pointing to two large trees which formed the beginning of a dense woods. In the summer the woods hung thick with green leaves, and a carpet of green lay upon the ground, but now it was bare, and in spots there were muddy pools and bits of marsh.

"Oh, Roland, look! look!" cried Mamie, bending down, and pushing back the carpet of dried leaves. "Here is a violet!"

And sure enough, there it lay, half buried in the ground, yet peeping forth blue and lovely. "And here are others, oh dear! oh dear!"

"Here," said Roland, "put them in my muffler; we will make a bag out of it, so. Then we will fill it with violets."

Deeper and deeper into the woods they went, picking ever one more violet and ever venturing a little deeper into the blackness.

"What makes it so dark?" asked Roland once, stopping and looking up at the sky through the trees. "Oh, dear!" he exclaimed, "it's going to rain."

"Well, I'm hungry," said Mamie, "and I am going to stop and eat my lunch if it does rain."

So with the drops falling gently around them, they sat upon the cold wet earth and ate their lunch.

"I think," said Mamie, "that we had better go back now. I feel cold and it is getting late. It must be 2 o'clock."

"All right," said Roland, "where are the violets?"

"I thought you had them," said Mamie. "I gave them to you," said Roland. "They were gone, muffled and all, and disappeared, the two children started back to find them."

How it happened Roland never could tell, but they started in the wrong direction, and after they had walked a good hour they saw that they had made a mistake. "I guess we'd better turn around," said Roland, "and go back."

"Oh, dear!" said Mamie, whimpering a little. "I'm so tired!"

Another hour's walking brought them no nearer the outskirts of the woods and, in a dilemma, they sat down to think it over.

"I'm afraid we are lost," said Mamie, rubbing her eyes.

"I don't know," said Roland bravely. "But if you don't feel too tired, Mamie, I guess we'd better walk a little further on. It isn't much further."

Meanwhile all was excitement in the village.

When Mamie and Roland did not appear at school, the teacher sent home for them, and when it was found that they were gone, search parties were sent out for them. Inquiry was made at the homes of all their relatives, and then, not finding them, the parties searched further. They scarcely thought that the children could have been venturesome enough to go to the woods, but there was really no telling what they would do.

Finally the searching party found a mitten dropped by Roland at the fence which led into the woods, and with this clue they started on their search in the cold, wet forest.

It was 6 o'clock when Roland's father found his muffer, filled with violets, and this cheered them on. At 9 they came across the children, nestled snugly against the roots of a big tree, both fast asleep.

The next day Roland went back to school a changed boy. He realized how much trouble he had made his father and all his friends and determined to do better. Mamie took her share of the blame, too, and for a while at least one would have recognized the studious boy who stood at the head of the class as the careless Roland of a short time before.—Columbus Dispatch.

A man talks about owning his business. But, as a matter of fact his business owns him. His whole life is regulated by the demands of the business. The time which he rises, his breakfast, the time given to meals, are all determined by business obligations. He rushes through lunch because he "can't spare the time from business" to eat leisurely. He won't take a rest because he is needed at the store or office. He is in fact an absolute slave to business. The results which follow this slavery are to be seen on every hand: Men dyspeptic, irritable, nervous, with drawn faces, and hollow eyes, sit at the desk or stand behind the counter until they are collapse in a fit of sickness, or are taken away by heart failure. Those who cannot escape the exactions of business will find a friend in Minard's Liniment. It restores the stomach, increases the action of the blood-making glands, increasing the vitality and physical vigor. It makes men strong and prevents those business breakdowns which so often terminate fatally.

In creation God shows us his hand, but in redemption God gives us his heart.

ROTH-SCHILD'S MAXIMS

In one of the private letters of the late Alphonse de Rothschild, these maxims of success of the great house of Rothschild are found:

Carefully examine every detail of your business.

Take time to consider, but decide positively.

Dare to go forward.

Bear troubles patiently.

Be brave in the struggle of life.

Maintain your integrity as a sacred thing.

Never tell business lies.

Make no useless acquaintances.

Never appear something more than your are.

Pay your debts promptly.

Shun strong liquor.

Employ your time well.

Do not reckon upon chance.

Be polite to everybody.

Never be discouraged.

Then work hard and you will be certain to succeed.

FOR ONE SESSION

Dr. Tanner was Again Suspended in the British Commons

His Unusually Tongue as Usual Got Him Into Trouble—A Noisy Scene.

London, Aug. 4.—Once more Dr. Charles Tanner, Nationalist member for the Middle division of Cork, has been suspended; and, although in this instance, the suspension was only for one night, it was accompanied by disorderly scenes in the Commons.

After opposing a vote in supply, Dr. Tanner was appointed a teller. Subsequent to the division, the chairman announced that Dr. Tanner had grossly insulted him on account of the appointment, and in consequence he would suspend him for the remainder of the sitting.

Geestfuling wildly, Dr. Tanner defied the chairman, the House, and the whole English nation. Amid a deafening uproar, he declared that he would not be silenced by the speaker's minions, and then exclaimed:

"I defy the whole lot of you. I throw that in your teeth, you Irishmen. I leave the House with greater pleasure than I ever entered it."

Then, while staid members rose in their seats and tried to drown their utterances, Dr. Tanner, still yelling defiance, went out.

ANARCHIST PLOT.

Italian Police Claim to Have Learned of One.

It was Formed in the U. S.—King Humbert's Murder was Planned, to be Followed by Similar Crimes.

Rome, Aug. 4.—According to declarations made to the Milan police by persons who witnessed the assassination of King Humbert, and especially the King's footmen, four or five persons, wearing around their necks black handkerchiefs such as Bressi wore, were seen during the royal carriage at the time of the crime. After it was committed they began shouting, evidently to increase the confusion and to help Bressi to escape.

It Corriere della Italia says the police have discovered that a huge plot was formed in America to murder King Humbert and that his assassination was to be followed by similar crimes throughout Europe.

Another discovery is that Bressi last Sunday entered the royal chapel with the villa during a rain storm, and that he was seen during the funeral arrangements for the funeral.

Notwithstanding the most thorough search, the will of King Humbert has not yet been found. Count Brambilla has arrived in Rome to continue the search, which is retarded by the arrangements for the funeral.

Three Good Desserts.

FLAT PLUM CAKES—Work two ounces of lard into one pound of dough and add one ounce of sugar and two ounces of currants. Knead thoroughly and form into flat cake on an oil plate. Score across the top in diamonds and bake for three-quarters of an hour. Ten minutes before the cake is done brush it over with milk, scatter brown sugar over it and serve warm.

PINK CREAM.—Boil four ounces of ground rice into a quart of milk, adding two ounces of butter, two ounces of sugar and any flavoring-liked. Stir after the rice is added to the milk, and for twenty minutes after it boils, till it is a smooth custard. Color the rice to a pretty pink with cochineal. Spread the bottom of a glass dish with straw, berry preserves and, when cool, pour the rice over the jam till the dish is full. Set aside till cold, and then scatter desiccated coconut over the surface.

BANANA SPONGE.—Banana should be peeled by hand and never touched with a knife. Dissolve over and night one ounce of gelatine in one and three-quarter pints of water. Add next day the pulp of six very ripe bananas, one-quarter pound of sugar and the juice of one-half lemon. Stir well on the fire until it boils. Take off the fire and allow to cool, and when the mixture is beginning to settle add to it the well-beaten and perfectly stiff whites of two eggs. Beat all well and place in a wetted mould for next day.

Nothing is more obnoxious than a low person raised to a high position.—Claudian.

GLOOM AND DESPAIR

GIVE WAY TO VIGOR, HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

An Attack of La Grippe Left the Sufferer Weak, Nervous and Enfeebled—A Victim of Insomnia and Heart Trouble.

Naturally every sick person to whom help is promised, will ask "has the remedy been successful?" Whom has it helped? We cannot better answer these questions than by publishing testimonials received from grateful people who are anxious that other sufferers may profit by their cure.

One of these grateful ones is Mrs. Douglas Kilts, of Perry Station, Ont. Mrs. Kilts says:—"Three years ago I had a very severe attack of la grippe, and the disease left me in an extremely worn out, nervous, and enfeebled condition. The nervousness was so severe as to have all sleep forsook me. I had bad attacks of heart trouble, and the headaches I endured were something terrible. I had no appetite, and was literally 'fading away.' I was not able to work about the house and was so weak that I could scarcely lift a cup of tea. I was treated by a good doctor, but with no benefit. Almost in despair, I resorted to patent medicines, and tried several one after another, only to be disappointed by each. I lingered in this condition until the winter of 1899, when a friend prevailed upon me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I began taking them. From the first the pills helped me and I could feel my strength gradually returning. I continued the use of the pills according to directions until I had taken eight boxes, when I was again enjoying perfect health. My strength was splendid, the heart trouble and nervousness had ceased, while the blessing of sleep, once denied, had again returned. I had gained over thirty pounds in weight, and was able to do all my household work with ease. In fact I had received a new lease of life. I believe my cure is permanent, as more than a year has since passed and I feel so strong and well that I venture to say there is not a healthier woman in this section. Indeed I am enjoying better health than I have for twenty years, and the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I feel that I cannot say enough in their praise for I believe they saved my life. My son has also received the greatest benefit from the use of these pills in a case of spring fever."

TAKING THE CENSUS.

Jones—Great Scot! has that man been in an explosion or a railroad wreck?

Brown—Neither. He's a census enumerator who showed up a smaller population in his own town than it had ten years ago.

WHAT NOT TO SAY.

Do not say, "I can't eat." Take Hood's Sarsaparilla and say, "I am hungry all the time, and food never hurts me."

Never say to your friends that you are as tired in the morning as at night. If they happen to be sharp they will tell you Hood's Sarsaparilla cures that tired feeling.

Do not say, "My face is full of pimples." You are quite likely to be told by some one, "There's no need of that, for Hood's Sarsaparilla cures pimples."

It is improper and unnecessary to say, "My health is poor and my blood is bad." Hood's Sarsaparilla will give you good blood, and good health will follow as a natural consequence.

In Italy and some other continental countries, women are employed at many railway crossings, being selected because they are less liable than men to indulge in intoxicants.

—When you need medicine you should get the best money can buy, and experience proves this to be Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Minard's Liniment—Lumberman's Friend.
