How to Build a Home

In Two Weeks after the Foundation is Completed

In all estimates for building, one of the principle items of cost, is labor. Delays on account of bad weather—long waits for mortar to dry—also mean a money loss. Metal Walls and Ceilings protect you against delays and excessive labor cost. A building may be put up at any time of the year regardless of weather conditions. The average dwell foundation in two weeks' time. Once in place, Metal Walls and Ceilings never need repairs, last as long as the house, and make rooms absolutely fireproof.

To those building or remodeling homes, in the Metal Shingle & Siding Co., Limited, corner of Preston, Ont., will send, free, if you sloopment this paper, their handsomely illustrated catalogue showing many of the beautiful designs they make in Art Metal Goods.
