NO DOUBT ABOUT
ROBT. BOND'S CASE

He Was Cured of Bright's Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Doctors said there was no hope for him but he is a Well Man Now.

Mount Brydges, Ont., Nov. 13.—(Special).—That Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Bright's Disease completely and permanently has been clearly shown in the case of Mr. Robert Bond, a well known resident of this place. Mr. Bond does not hesitate to say he owes his life to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My attending physician," Mr. Bond states, "said I was in the last stages of Bright's Disease and that there was no hope for me. I then commenced to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and to other remedy. I used in all about twenty boxes when my doctor pronounced me quite well. I have had no return of the trouble since."

Bright's Disease is Kidney Disease in its worst form. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure it. They also cure milder forms of Kidney Complaint.

STRUNG UP AND SHOT.

Charges Which Are Made Against German African Expedition.

London, Nov. 13.—Several British subjects who have returned to Cape Town from German Southwest Africa, tell extraordinary stories of the hanging and shooting of women and children by the German columns operating against the native rebels.

A young Transvaal Dutchman named F. Wepener stated that at Okanjist eight women and six children were strung up to the trees by the neck and then shot. The Germans said that they were spies, but they were captured with the natives with whom we have been fighting, and some of the children could not have been older than five years.

"All the men and children captured on the march were treated in the same way. I have seen at least twenty-five of them hanged and shot."

THIS MEDICINE IS BREATHED.

That's why it is so to cure Catarrh. You see it goes direct to the source of the disease—its healing vapor repairs the damage caused by catarrhal inflammation. "Catarrh-ozone" always cures because it goes into these tiny cells and passages that ordinary remedies can't reach, goes where the disease actually is. It is impossible for "Catarrh-ozone" to fail as any doctor will tell you. Don't be misled into thinking there is anything as good as Catarrh-ozone—use it and you'll soon say good-by to catarrh.

THAT PALE, TIRED GIRL.

She is in society, in business, at home, everywhere you see her, but always worn and fatigued. She has not heard of Ferreroze or she would be perfectly well. How quickly it strengthens—a glow an appetite it gives—what a glow it brings to pallid cheeks! The nutrient contained in Ferreroze puts strength into anybody. Laughing eyes, rosy lips, and bright, quick movements all tell of the vitality Ferreroze produces. Thousands of attractive, happy women use Ferreroze—why not you? A box of fifty chocolate-coated tablets costs fifty cents at any drug store.

CONCERNING COMPANY.

Perfect and Genuine Hospitality May Be a Very Simple Matter.

As a rule, the chief anxiety of a hostess seems to be how she shall feed her guest. Now, while food is necessary and good, it is not the most important thing in life, and a visitor ought to care more for the society of her hostess than for an elaborate dessert or complicated dish. It is of course only natural to wish to give our friends the best, but let it be the best of ourselves rather than of material things.

The most perfect hospitality I ever experienced was that of a college chum who, some years after graduating, managed to get three classmates together for a couple of days at her summer home. On her way up from the station she said: "The market here is not very good, and Hannah is the plainest of plain cooks, but we will eat what she provides, for I am not going to waste any time on food while you are here. I want to spend every minute enjoying you, for we may never be all together again." So we had an abundance of simple food and were perfectly happy in seeing each other.

We four have never been together again, and it is probable that we shall never have such another opportunity, but we look back on those two days and feel that we have had one perfect visit. The guest who is worthy of being entertained at all comes to see you not to eat your food or to upset your ordinary ways of life. The tendency is to make it all too much a matter of show rather than of friendship.

It is no wonder that our mails do not receive the announcement of approaching company with enthusiasm. Why, indeed, should they? All the trouble falls to their share and none of the enjoyment. Moreover, much of the trouble is quite unnecessary. I know a family where all the "waiting on table" ordinarily required of the one maid is to remove the dishes between the roast and the dessert, with no more uniform than a clean apron over her calico dress; but when there is company, behold a startling change! The usual plain dinner of two courses is expanded by the addition of soup, salad and coffee, and the maid, hustled into some sort of black garments, has to cook the meal and also serve it as if she were "second girl" instead of "general housework." Is it any wonder that company is not considered an unmixed blessing in that kitchen?

It is delightful to have our meals nicely served by a well trained waitress, but if we are not accustomed to so doing every day any departure from our usual methods is sure to prove unsatisfactory. It is largely our own fault if we make hospitality a burden to ourselves and others. It ought to be the source of the purest pleasure. Ethel Williams in Boston Cooking School Magazine.

New Hampshire Custard Pie.

Custard pie is always a favorite, and a very tempting variety of it is the New Hampshire article, for which Boston Cooking School Magazine gives the following recipe: Beat four eggs until light and thick. Then beat in half a teaspoonful of salt and three-fourths of a cup of sugar and, gradually, three cups of rich milk. Bake in a deep earthen plate lined with pastry in a moderate oven until the center feels firm to the touch.

CUSTARD PIE.

Pour a cup of cold water over two quarts of oysters; look over one by one to remove bits of shell. Strain the liquid through a cheesecloth, add a pint of chicken liquor and heat to the boiling point. Then add the oysters and again heat to the boiling point. Skim out the oysters and add, with the strained liquid, to a soup made as follows: Cook two-thirds of a cup of sifted flour, a teaspoonful of salt with a dash of black pepper and half a cup of butter and stir into three pints of milk scalded, with two slices of onion, two stalks of celery, a sprig of parsley and a bay leaf. Stir and cook until smoothly thickened, then stir occasionally for twenty minutes and strain over the oysters and liquor. Finish with half a cup of hot cream and two tablespoonfuls of butter, stirred in at the last in little bits. The quantity will serve from ten to fifteen persons, according to an exchange, which gives this recipe.

A Fuel Item.

After experimenting all last winter to find a suitable fuel for our grate we discovered that the soft coal commonly used on railroads is productive of the greatest heat, says a Good House-keeping correspondent. It comes from the dealer at a price not exceeding that of stove coal and consists of large chunks mixed with a fine powder, which burn to a glowing solid mass and leave no ashes to be sifted. It requires far less attention than the ordinary grate fire, remaining cheerful for a long time after the blower has been removed.

Decorative Lamps.

Lamps of the decorative class are more popular than ever, especially for country houses, where the soft glow produced by silken shade and stained glass is very artistic and desirable.

The monument is erected as a sacred memorial to a sympathetic friend, Jesus said: 'I am the resurrection and the life.'"

HERB. W. EDWARDS INJURED.

Herb W. Edwards, of Des Moines, Iowa, got a fall on an icy walk last winter, spraining his wrist and knee. "The next day," he says, "they were so sore and stiff I was afraid I would have to stay in bed, but I rubbed them well with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications all soreness had disappeared. I feel that this bottle of Pain Balm saved me several days' time, to say nothing of the suffering." This liniment is for sale by all druggists.
