The dwelling of Mrs S. R. Sleep, in being destroyed by fire on Monday last. Owing to the day being cold a fire was kindled in one of the parlors for the first time this season, and on Miss Sleep going into the room shortly after she discovered the mantle-drapery and ornaments in a blaze. Fortunatly she had the parence of mind to throw a rug over the burning articles and extinguished the flames, thus preventing a large and destructive conflagration.
