In Smoky Mountain.

Tom Marshall looked about with his eyes curiously as he sat upon the platform of the South Carolina station. He was sick, therefore miserable in mind and body, and he had come South because it seemed the only thing to do. Now he was waiting for the train that would carry him to the pines on the slope of Old Smoky.

He raised his head. A mile stood near by stopping his ears and heavily twitching a busy tail. In front of him was a young girl, a very thin girl.

"Guess I came for you, but I thought you was to be a lady." "Why? Marshall asked." "I don't know, 'cept that Juliet guessed it from your letter, you wrote so ladylike. I don't believe she'd have taken you if she'd known you was a man."

"Any special reason why she shouldn't?" he asked. "Maybe," was the noncommittal answer, "but now you're here we'd better start." She looked about with keen eyes. I wonder where that station man has gone and put your trunk?

"I'm sitting on it. But how are we going to get it into the wagon. The agent's gone and I haven't the strength of a kitten!" She looked at him reflectively. "You are kinder peaked, but you 'en' leave things to me. I can manage, by pushing it toward the edge an' backin' it to the platform. You 'en' get in an' sit down; you needn't be sherrin' at the mule. Bet knows when to behave herself."

Two weeks later, with Mollie's help, he walked to a bench in the shade of a big oak and there faced a dilemma. He had sensed something wrong as he lay in bed during those first days, but had been too listless to ask questions. Now Mollie told him that their money had died in the spring and with her death the little pension she had received had ceased. Juliet had seen his advertisement in an old newspaper and thought they might as well take a boarder, as they needed money. "But," Mollie ended simply, "we thought you was a lady, and now all the folks is talkin'—" de, desperately. "I'm not well enough to go away." "An' Juliet's been talkin' an' we thought you might go up the mountain to Jim Howe's old cabin. He's gone, but there's a bed, and we an' Juliet can fill a bag with pine needles for a mattress, and Juliet can cook you something to eat and I can take it to you. You can be real comfortable up there, an' we don't neither of us want you to go," she finished wistfully.

"An' I don't want to go," Marshall answered. "If you and Juliet can fix it that way I'm satisfied. But I will tell you what to do. Get someone to bring me a chair or two and some other things from the village, if I am to set up housekeeping. And there is something else." He drew the child close to him. "I heard you say you felt real bad because you could 'nt go to the district school. Wouldn't you like me to teach you? I could be something for me to do, and you could come to me in your spare time. I'm pretty sure you will learn more with me than in that schoolhouse two miles away. What do you say to my plan?"

grandfather was Alphonse d'Armand and that his wife was Julie de Guesclix. It would seem you are named a lot her."

"I would live to read that just as it is written. Do you think that I could learn?" she asked eagerly. But Juliet had taught Tom something more wonderful than anything he had known before he came to the little mountain cabin.

Got Rid of Bronchitis.
Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes:—"I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Licorice and Turpentine has done much good to myself, child and children. My eldest girl, 7 years old, had bronchitis and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do it much good. Licorice and Turpentine for her and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

War Measure is Efficient.
DEFENCE OF CANADA ACT STANDS BETWEEN THE PUBLIC AND LAWLESS ELEMENTS.
Ottawa, Oct. 29th.—A resolute order has been issued here that those convicted of making seditious utterances are liable to a fine of $5,000 or a term of five years in the penitentiary, or both, under the Defence of Canada Act. It was under this Act that a foreign-born individual was sentenced to two years in the Kingston Penitentiary after conviction in Toronto recently.

Nations at war require some such Act as this one in order to protect the law-abiding elements of the country from the reign of terror which habitually follows open seditious propaganda, apart altogether from the military question concerned. Canada has efficient legislative protection against such disorder and officials here are determined that, should any regular monthly will be enforced without equivocation. R-13

Everything in the world was created for some purpose. The old back-logs keep spirits hopeful.

"I DON'T SUFFER ANY MORE"
"Feel Like a New Person," says Mrs. Hamilton.

New Castle, Ind.—"From the time I was eleven years old until I was seventeen I suffered each month so I had to be in bed. I had headache, backache and such pains I would cramp double every month. I did not know what it was to be easy a minute. My health was all run down and the doctor did not do me any good. A neighbor told my mother about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it and now I feel like a new person. I don't suffer any more and I can regular every month."—Mrs. HAZEL HAMILTON, 223 South 16th St.

Walt Mason Says.

Beneath this stone there lies at rest a man who did his best. The Gods ordained that he should move on a lowly humble grove. For him there was no wealth or fame, he bore no proud ancestral name, no palace doors for him swung wide, but in his but he lived and died. His years were many and his toll brought riches from the stubborn soil, but all that wealth to them was brought who owned the land where he wrought. He fashioned lumber and the board's made shelter for the languid birds.

France has for a year been producing 250,000 shells a day for the famous '75' guns as compared with 12,000 daily when the war began. Andre Tardieu, High French Commissioner in the United States, said in a statement at New York on Saturday. His estimate of credits voted by France from August of 1914, until America entered the conflict was nearly $21,000,000,000, of which more than nineteen and a half billion came, he said, from the savings of the French people. Mr. Tardieu also said that in 1914 France had only 300 heavy guns, organized in regiments. Now she has more than 600. Besides, she has given more than 300 heavy guns to Russia and Rumania, and other Allies. More than two-thirds and nearly three-fourths of the western front is still occupied by the French army, which has 2,700,000 men in the field.

Mammoth Turtle.
What is believed to be the largest turtle ever seen in northern waters was sighted and killed on Thursday by the crew of the little fishing sloop, Pontic, Capt. W. D. Cushman, the vessel at the time being about 15 miles to the southward of Portland lightship. The turtle when first seen was floating on top of the water with its head protruding and it was apparently dreaming as it made no attempt to dive as the sloop approached, but quickly came to life when a harpoon was driven into him by one of the crew. In some way, it cleaved itself and dove, remaining under water about 15 minutes when it came up into the boat which it also leaped itself. For the third time it was speared and this time the iron held, and the turtle was towed alongside. Such was its size and weight, however, that the crew were unable to get it on board their craft. The fishermen described the turtle as a perfect monster, being all of eight feet in length and more than two feet through in its thickest part, with a head bigger than a water pail, its weight being apparently near 1,000 pounds.—Gloucester Times.

For Baby's Tender Skin.
A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and excess may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sore is healed up and the skin is left soft and velvety.

President Wilson is fond of telling a story about an old teamster. This old fellow said to the treasurer of the concern one day. "Me and that off horse has been workin' for the company seventeen years, sir."

"Just so Win'ebottom, just so, said the treasurer, and he cleared his throat and added: "Both treated well I hope?"

"The old teamster looked dubious. 'Well,' he said, 'we was both took en down sick last month, and they got a doctor for the horse, while they docked my pay.'"

We always feel sorry for the dignified man when the tally is being passed.

Indigestion Resulted From an Inactive Liver
The Bowels Became Constipated and the Whole Digestive System Upset.

With many people constipation becomes a habit. And it is a dangerous habit which is certain sooner or later to result in serious trouble. The first and most important rule of health. When the liver becomes torpid the flow of bile into the intestines is stopped and the bowels become constipated. But you can readily overcome this condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment obtainable which so promptly awakens the activity of the liver and bowels and thereby cures constipation of the digestive system.
