THE BOARD'S FINDING.

The conciliation board have reported in substance that the struggle in Nova Scotia is between a Canadian and an American labor organization, and that steps should be taken to free Canadian coal miners from the domination of outside interests or officers. This, of course, is not to say that Canadian workmen in no line of occupation should be allowed to be long to an international labor organization. The coal mining business in the circumstances and in its relation to the public occupies a unique position, a position which should be frankly acknowledged by both operators and miners.

Canadian and American coal mine owners are in constant competition for the markets of each other's country. The Pennsylvania miners want to get into the Montreal market, the Nova Scotia miners into the New England market. There is thus an ever-present inducement to the operators on either side of the boundary to tie up the mines on the other side if it can be done. Experience has shown that operators are not always above resorting to improper means to secure markets, and there have been some pretty straight declarations that the present trouble in Nova Scotia was begun and is financed by Pennsylvania mine owners who want to capture the Montreal trade. The circumstances of the case make it at once apparent that the Canadian coal mining industry would be on a more stable basis from the standpoint of both operator and miner if the United States operators and miners were not given the power to disorganize it when it is organized. The point is that the United States operators have used a miners' organization preponderantly American to accomplish the disruption of the Canadian industry; the time is ripe for considering how this menace can be removed.

Aside from the stability of the industry and the interests of those engaged therein, the coal supply of this nation is at stake. In a country with a pronounced winter season this is a subject of vital moment. It is intolerable that the power to curtail the supply should reside in the hands of foreign operators whose profit would be increased and of foreign miners whose employment would be more plentiful if our mines were put out of business. Whether that power has been exercised in the past or not is not the question. The point is that the power should not exist, for if it does exist the most populous portion of the Dominion has no security against a coal famine engineered by the Pennsylvania operators to whose interest it would be to create such famine. If that power exists, as it is said to exist, it constitutes a national peril which in defence of the public should be removed.

The removal of the alleged menace lies with the Canadian miners. If the menace is real as the board seem to believe, it is their patriotic duty to remove it. Canadian operators on their part should of course be bound to enter no agreement with American operators for the division of markets, the containment of supply or the hoarding of prices. The fuel supply of the nation must be kept free from "entangling alliances."

CURRENT COMMENT.

The ex-shah declined to receive a deputation sent to inform him that he had been deposed, intimating that he was aware of the fact. If his foresight had equalled his blind-sight he might still be Shah.

The joint committee of the two houses of Congress are pruning off some of the Senatorial amendments to the tariff. When they have concluded a commission will be in order to determine and officially inform the public whether the revision was really up or down.

Montreal Gazette.—The cocaine habit is said to prevail to an "awful" extent in Toronto, and the authorities are urged to move in the matter. They might get on the track of the sinners by visiting some of the newspapers which publish legends of what is passing for thought in the Queen city. Their outbursts are evidently the outcome of taking something more factual than the product of the local distilleries.

The Calgary Albertan devotes a few words to the attitude of an esteemed contemporary toward "gold brick" schemes, etc. "Do you realize that if you are a gambler and happen to be a friend of the Calgary Herald or a member of its staff, you can do whatever you please in the way of shark business, fleecing the public without any regard to the extent of it, or the rapacity of it, and the incident will never be published, and you will be defended to the end and some time after that, and so will be the people who protect you, and you will be interviewed and your version given to the public and none other will be published, and you will be given reputation and honor as if you were an honest man, only more so. And this will be kept up to the finish and it will bring you something too. It is not a pleasant thought for the public, but it is hot stuff for you, Mr. Crook, and it is something that you can bank on in your own business."

The Railway commission may be asked to again take up the question of freight-rate discrimination between western points. The agitation is a direct result of a resolution brought before the Associated Boards of Trade during the conference at Saskatoon last month, by the Moose Jaw delegates, and although the railway companies have prepared a new joint tariff which will come into effect about August 1, this does not, it is said, satisfy the executive of the association (which took the matter up). Moose Jaw claims to be the greatest sufferer, although many other points are in a similar position. It is a non-competitive point, and the railways are said to get it both going and coming. On the opening day of the conference, at which several prominent railway officials were present, the representatives of the Moose Jaw board of trade brought to the attention of the association the manner in which that city suffered heavily from discrimination in coal rates. They stated that the companies now carry coal from Fort William to Regina, a competitive point, a distance of 780 miles, for $4.50 per ton, while freight charges to Moose Jaw, 42 miles west, is $1.30 per ton more. On eastbound coal the situation was shown to be just about the same. The rate from Lethbridge to Moose Jaw, a distance of 364 miles, they claimed, was $3.15 per ton, while the rate from Lethbridge to Winnipeg, a distance of 762 miles, was only $4.55 per ton. In one instance the railway gave $3.10 per ton for carrying coal 42 miles, and in another it gets only $1.40 per ton for carrying the same commodity a distance of 308 miles. Last week the president of the association, William Cousins, of Medicine Hat; E. M. Saunders, of Moose Jaw, and John T. Hall, of Medicine Hat, secretary-treasurer of the association, waited upon Mr. Langman and Mr. Shaw in regard to the matter, and formally presented the resolution adopted at the conference. They were informed that the railway companies were preparing a new joint tariff to be placed in effect on August 1, which would bring down the rates on coal. Although the new tariff has not as yet been made public, the executive of the Associated Boards of Trade is aware of its contents, and is not satisfied that the discrimination has been removed. The tariff, of course, have to go before the railway commission before being approved, and it is reliably stated that the executive of the association will take this opportunity to present its case in detail. The outcome will be closely watched by the various western towns interested, and to which it means a large amount of money.

BIG WAREHOUSE COLLAPSES

Wilson Stationery Co., Winnipeg, suffers $15,000 Damages.

Winnipeg, Man., July 25.—The big handsome warehouse built some years ago for the C. E. Wilson Stationery Co., suffered by a collapse of the southwest corner. It appears that a fire protection tank was placed over the rear roof, and this, weighing probably eighty tons, was too much for the building. Forty feet on the rear face and about 35 feet on the side fell in a straight cut down to the first floor, where it dropped to the foundation. The wall fell from the rear forward, and took sections from five floors also. The building, which cost $75,000, appears otherwise unharmed, and repairs will probably not cost more than $15,000 unless an inspection shows the foundations to have been injured. A peculiar feature is that the post over which the tank sat is still standing, which would make it seem that the tank fell over.

Water Wings Were Useless.

St. Catharines, Ont., July 25.—Ralph Campbell, Englishman, aged 30 years, employed on a farm, lost his life while bathing in the canal this morning. Campbell was unable to swim, but had secured a pair of water wings, and, becoming entangled in his arms his head dropped about six inches under water. He was found in this way.
