King George Institute.

OPENING DAY.

A 3 o'clock this afternoon His Honor the Deputy Governor, Sir William H. Horwood, formally opened the King George Seaman's Institute. It will be remembered that His Majesty not only gave the use of his name to the Seaman's Institute, but on his way from the Coronation ceremonies at Westminster Abbey presented a button which sent an electric impulse from Buckingham Palace to the building's foundation stone of the building, and at the touch of the King the foundation stone dropped in its place. Since that time the erection of the building has proceeded apace, and is now arrived at a sufficiently advanced stage of interior finishing and furnishing that everything was ready for the formal opening this afternoon.

The outside appearance is massive and solid, but most unpretentious in the way of architectural design or beauty. The plainness of the exterior in no way prepares for the finish and furnishings of the interior. The change affords a pleasant surprise to the visitor. The corridor on the ground floor is spacious and lengthy and well finished. To the east is a nicely finished billiard room with three tables installed. To the south of the corridor is a good sized auditorium with a stage platform. On this floor are other rooms and a kitchen. Perhaps the most attractive feature in the basement is the swimming pool, with slides, bottom and pavement around finished in white mosaic. Adjoining are a number of compartments with sides of white marble and fitted with shower baths. The dormitories are small but each has its radiator and will no doubt be warm and well ventilated. We do not propose to give an exhaustive description of the Institute, but to give sufficient to indicate that the building is large, with extensive accommodation, well fitted to serve meals and refreshments, with baths, swimming pools, and recreations on a scale and magnificence which are not equaled in the city. The interior is most attractive and if the management comes up to the accommodation the Institute should prove most popular.

Yesterday the first meeting in connection with the opening was held in the Auditorium, which was crowded to an overflow into the corridor.

At 3.30 Dr. Grenfell accompanied by Dr. Van Dyke, Mr. Warburton and Mr. Archibald took their seats on the platform.

Mr. Archibald spoke on the Bible as affording a guide for the life of man. Dr. Grenfell followed and told of the object of the Institute and what it was hoped would be accomplished. The last speaker was Rev. Dr. Van Dyke. He touched on the

Mr. Horwood is a great enthusiast on technical education and his talk with us on the great work being done in the "Queen City of the West" was most entertaining. ### Red Rubber Atrocities in Peru

Special to Evening Telegram.
LONDON, To-Day.

Disclosures as to the state of affairs in the rubber industry at Peru, published in the Blue Book just issued by the Foreign Office, as a result of Sir Roger Casement's investigations, attract great attention and caused comparisons to be drawn between those at one time reported from Congo Free State. The British Consul General at Rio Janeiro fully confirms the charges brought against native agents of the Peruvian Amazon Company, a British concern, formerly engaged in the rubber collection in Putumayo's district. The gruesome story was first published in the States and was brought to the attention of the British Foreign Office by the Washington State Department. Casement was sent out to Peru a year ago and found overwhelming evidence of murder and torture of defenceless Indians. He discovered that kerosene had been poured over men, women and children who had been tied to stakes and were then set on fire. The brains of children have been dashed out and limbs of Indians have been cut off. Fever broken they had been left to die. The tortures also included deliberate starvation of many people. The Foreign Office says that after many months of futile attempts to get the Peruvian government to take measures to prevent a recurrence of such horrors and punish many persons, it was decided with cordial acquiescence of States government that the only course to take was to publish facts in full. An exposure of these atrocities was made by "Truth" some years ago.

Placed for Death

Special to Evening Telegram.
CHICAGO, To-Day.

Thirteen killed and 20 were injured in a train wreck on the Chicago Burlington Quincy Railway at Western Springs, a suburb of Chicago, yesterday. Coming through the fog with a supposedly clear track ahead, a fast mail train ran full speed into the rear of an express from Denver, which was standing still on the track, telegraphing two overland pullman cars. A fire starting from gaslights in the sleepers then broke out. Many victims who were pinned down by heavy timbers and iron pleaded for death. Members of the fire department at Western Springs and Lorraine were on the scene a few minutes after the wreck occurred. They put out the fire. The cause of the wreck is not yet decided.
