Six Inch Shell in Garbage Heap.

London Incinerator in Peril— Explosive Was Being Fed to Flames— Lives Were in Danger.

London, Ont., July 30.—What is regarded in some quarters as an attempt to blow up London's new $125,000 incinerator was revealed when a six-inch artillery shell was found concealed in the garbage collected yesterday afternoon.

On the brink of the platform from which the furnace is fed, Superintendent Dodd discovered the missile just as it was being placed on the barrier which would deposit it in the flames. Had the shell reached its destination the seven employees and the entire structure would probably have been blown to atoms, with the possibility also that serious damage would have resulted to Victoria Hospital, situated nearby, and in which there were over 500 patients.

An examination of the shell showed that it was one such as is used by the militia department.

The police and city officials are baffled in their attempt to discover the perpetrator, and the mystery is added to by the fact that the shell was stolen from the office of Superintendent Dodd late last night or early this morning.

Wasted Sarcasm.

Signor Caruso was telling a story recently about a lady who went to a friend of his, a famous singing master and said she wanted him to train her voice. She explained that she was in a great hurry, as she was going abroad in a week or two, and would he please start training her voice at once. "I want," she said, "twenty-five lessons before I sail."

"That is quite impossible, madame," replied the master, "you cannot hurry the voice in that way."

"Why not?" demanded the lady. "I've got plenty of time, and I can take two lessons a day."

The horrified master tried sarcasm. "Or, perhaps," he suggested bitingly, "you would care to take the whole twenty-five lessons right on end, one after the other!"

"Splendid!" exclaimed the delighted lady. "When shall we start?"

Easier to Remember.

The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, the centenary of whose birth is being celebrated, had a rather defective memory at times.

When he was making the announcements for the coming week one Sunday he wanted to intimate that he would not be the preacher on the following Sunday, and that the pulpit would be occupied by his son-in-law, the Rev. Samuel Scoville, but at the last moment his memory went astray.

"In addition to the notices just read," he announced, "I desire to say that I shall not be preaching here next Sabbath, and the pulpit will be occupied by—by—the pulpit will be occupied by—by—"

After he had stammered for a few seconds he tried again. "I shall not be here next Sabbath, and the preacher will be—will be—". Here he broke off with a touch of exasperation: "Why, I know him quite well. You all know him. He married my daughter! Oh, I remember!" And he proceeded gravely: "Sam will preach here next Sabbath."

Household Notes.

When the coal-oil lamp has a tendency to smell badly, saturate the wick with good vinegar and allow it to dry perfectly before putting it into the lamp. It will never smell, no matter how small the flame.

When washing new curtains you will generally find that they are full of lime. A great deal of trouble may be saved by soaking the curtains overnight in water, in which a little salt has been dissolved. The salt draws out the lime and makes the curtains easy to wash.

This is a good way to clean carpet: Get one ounce of wormwood salt from the druggist; put it into a pail of warm water; then wash your carpet, as you would the floor, or, if very dirty, scrub it. When finished, all the dirt and grease spots have disappeared and the carpet looks like new.

When the travelling bag becomes dirty, wash it all over with tepid water and a little soap. After it is dry, put a little oxalic acid in a cup of hot water and wipe the bag well with a soft cloth dipped in acid. When dry, brush the bag with the white of an egg and it will look fresh and new.

A very good plan to clean knives without putting the handles in water is as follows: Have handy a jug or vessel with soda water, and as soon as possible after the knives have been used stick the blades in soda water, leaving the handles on the outside. This will cleanse and quickly remove stain and rust.

That Painful Heel.

In these long summer days come the call of the road. Long tramps by the seashore and country lane. No more health-giving exercise is to be found, and no better sleep promoter.

But—and it's a big "but"—all the pleasure goes if one's feet are not in walking trim. And it is at the heel that the weakness generally makes itself felt.

Don't choose boots that are too loose, but comfortable, well-fitting, footgear, and, of course, not new. Boots that are new and stiff, or that do not fit properly, produce blisters and soreness on the heels. A piece of soap plaster should be laid on a heel that is sore and inflamed and has the skin unbroken. But if a blister has formed and broken, thoroughly wash the warm water to which has been added some boracic powder.

Next lay over the particular spot a small piece of boracic lint with a little vaseline on, and rest the foot if possible. It seems a little thing, but this blister, but many a case of blood-poisoning has arisen from such a small source.
