The statement says, the protest of the British Government with regard to the treatment of British risoners has been communicated to the German Government, and the Ger man authorities say that the German High Command was doing all in its power to deliver prisoners in good condition, but that the severity of the armistice conditions presented difficulties. The German High Command later was informed that no excuses would be accepted by the British Government, and that full recompense would be exacted for any unnecessary sufferings of British prisoners of war. To this the Germans replied that they would do their utmost to alleviate the who had been a prisoner for seven months, spoke bitterly of an enforced march after his capture. LONDON, Nov. 28. Admiral Von Reuter, commander of Admiral Von Reuter, commander of the German fleet which surrendered to the Allies on Nov. 21, has protested against the order of Admiral Sir David Beatty, of the British fleet, directing that the German flag be hauled down. He points out, according to an Admiralty statement that internment in a British harbor is under the terms of armistice, equivalent to internment in istice, equivalent to internment a neutral port, which, in accordance with precedent, flags are allowed to remain hoisted. He adds, "I regard it unjustifiably and contrary to internaunjustifiably and contrafy to interna-tional custom to order the striking of the flag on German ships. However, in my opinion, the order to strike the flag was not in keeping with the idea of chivalry between two honorable opponents."
