Port Arthur says: A number of Rat Portage and Port Arthur imbermen who have been attending the big ine saic in Toronto have arrived back. The rived which the Government realized for the unber herita in Port Arthur district are cot-

Then the "friend at court" would have put in a bid for the coveted share of the fruits of their own labor, ways timber, he would have received it practically and means would soon be found to promote timber, he would have received it practically on his own terms, and the benefit to the Province of public competition, so well sacrificing no legitimate Canadian or exemplified in the recent sale, and the United States interest would be beneficial eriticisms of our contemporary's correspondent, would have been entirely lost.

A BAD PLACE FOR MURDERERS. It did not take a jury at the Welland Assises very long to reach the conclusion that Arthur Hoyt Day was guilty of the murder of his wife at Niagara Falls last July, and this morning he was sentenced to be hanged. The crime, as summarized in our dispatches, was committed under circumstances that left the criminal no excuse. Like Birchall, the accused, by his ewn lying and contradictory stories, told after the murder, aided materially in his own conviction. The crime was premeditated in the States, and neither Day nor his wife was a citizen of Canada.

It is to be hoped that the fate of Birchall and now of Day will be reflected on by persons meditating murder, whether they live in Great Britain or in the United

Trade is a matter of business, not of sentiment, and not all the "loyalty" speeches which Dominion Ministers can make from now till doomsday will persuade even a British miller or maltster to take a bushel of Canadian wheat or barley at 1 cent above the current price in the world's markets.

It was clearly the business of the Dominion Government, in the interest of the Canadian people, to enter into negotiations for the establishing of fair trade relations with the United States when the opportunity was open to them. But instead of doing so they preferred to frame a high tariff of their own, and so set to the United States an example which the politicians of States an example which the politicians of that country have been only too ready to

We have the Foster tariff and the Mc-Kinley tariff now, and Canadians will soon see how restriction will operate when in full swing on both sides of the line.

COMPULSORY OVERWORK.

The Toronto Telegram says that "Canada will work a way out" of the injury inflicted upon her by the maintenance of the high tax policy on the United States borders. But why should the Dominion be called upon to "work her way out" of a taxation craze of this sort? The men now in power at Ottawa had it in their power to show by actions that they were anxious to secure reciprocity for the country, and thus avoid the injury to our interests now effected, but instead of that they have acted throughout as mere agents of the com-bines, and have again and again said that view; but it is more than probable that though the prices are very good, they are fair to both purchaser and Province. ated the contention, while many of the re-There would be no kick on the part of the lumbermen if the Dominion Government had the control of the limits, as they would was out of the question. The advantages of the new gunpowder are all on the side of the defense, it seems, unless the attacking party be indiscreet and its leaders omit wise precautions.

::: -The latest attempt at a solution of the rum problem is a suggestion to characteriz trunkenness as a crime, and punish the drunkard as a criminal. The learner gentleman who proposes the remedy con siders intemperance the greatest rock in the way of the evangelization of the world, but he makes a fundamental error in say-ing, "When properly conducted it (the liquor trade) is entirely legitimate." When and where has it been properly conducted? What can be the proper method of conducting a business whose only object is to create diseased appetite? There is a proper method of putting down, and that is by prohibition.

It never was true anywhere.

The progress of the disease will be watched with some anxiety as well as with much interest. persons meditating murder, whether they live in Great Britain or in the United States. The speed and certainty with which justice is meted out to criminals in this country ought to convince would-be murderers that Canada is the worst possible place for those who are murderously inclined. It will save this Province a good deal of expense, and may be to the advantage of the partice particularly interested if in fisture they find it convenient to detheir murdering on the other side of the border.

LOOKING FOR FAR-OFF MARKETS. The position of the Dominion Government and its friends in relation to the United States tariff is that we must look to British markets and markets on the continents of Europe and Asia for the sale of such products a we have in the past been sending to the United States.

But why have we not looked in those directions before? Trade with the United States.
