LABOR REGISTERED A VICEROUS PROTEST. Ottawa Powers Declare That There is No Pact With Railway Regarding the Hiring of Orientals.

A vigorous protest has been registered against the Dominion government and the G. T. P. railway whereby the latter has given the Orientals in construction work the effect of a report submitted at last night's meeting of the Trades and Labor Council, Victoria, Georgia, that a reply has been received from Ottawa announcing that no such proposition was under consideration.

Opening addresses were made by the president of the Trades and Labor Council, Quebec, and Lewis, the premier of the Province of Quebec. W. McKenzie King, minister of labor, returned, after a long absence, to the city of Ottawa, where he is the special delegate of the A. F. L. W. Crooks, British labor M. P., and A. P. Jones, vice president of the congress.

It is with extreme gratification you delegate has to report to the convention the questions of the greatest importance—the most important ever considered by the congress—were introduced by resolution, officers and committees reported to the convention, the proceedings throughout were characterized by the spirit of fairness and the absence of acrimonious debate. The absence, also, of unnecessary debate was a commendable feature of the proceedings and reports submitted to the convention and the main points made in English to French, and vice versa, to enable both English and French speaking delegates to understand the proceedings and vote on the questions before the convention.

Of the greatest local importance, the resolution by Delegate McGeer, Vancouver, instructing the executive committee of the Trades and Labor Council to endeavor with the Dominion government to prevent or to further limit the immigration of Japanese, was after some discussion of an educational nature, unanimously adopted. Among the more important resolutions submitted to the convention were those that relate to the coal miners' strike in Nova Scotia in which charges were made against the irregularity of calling off the militia, imprisonment of picketers and the reprehensible action of the Dominion government to appoint a military commission to investigate the strike and for what reason or purpose the services of the militia were enlisted.

The most important resolution submitted to the convention was that of international peace, which was adopted in addition to declaring against aggressive warfare provides means for the introduction of the executive of the congress to the executive of the different national or international federations of labor, to be present and to take the lead in any peace conference, national or international, which may be called independent of, as a result of the action of the executive of the congress. The debate arising from the introduction of this resolution was characterized by the unanimity of opinion against aggressive warfare, the necessity of the working class who are manufacturers, exporters and who have least to gain by reason of war, taking the lead in establishing peace among the nations, and the awakening consciousness of the wage earners to the extent of their means by which war will be buried in a common grave with other relics of the past.

In the report of the executive committee that portion protesting against the introduction of the resolution introduced the continuance of military training in the schools as a means of instilling the mind of the young aggressive military spirit, was adopted and emphatic disapproval was expressed by the delegates. The report clearly shows that just proportion to the programme advised by labor representatives being put in operation will the work of the committee be productive of good results. Labor representatives on the said committee take the position that the standard of the individual or the community is, as a rule, the reflex of the economic condition of the individual or community; therefore to deal intelligently and effectively with the social conditions of the community, the means by which men and women, particularly women, are compelled to earn their living, must be improved. It is the moral and social reform of Canada which will in a short space of time become an auxiliary of
