

REMINDER

Whereas a portable spectrophotometer could provide accurate estimates of the quantity of T-2 in the serum samples based on color change, this is not the case for purely visual analysis. In the latter instance, all that is important is that this test indicates the presence of T-2, since this is only a screening kit. The samples should then be appropriately packaged, stored and transported to a laboratory for subsequent analysis.