

responsible positions, and local processing of raw materials. There will be a normal tendency on the part of developing countries to accept foreign investment when the need is colossal and to be more selective when this need reduces....

S/A