

We must be ready to give and take with all peoples. We must be ready to compromise. We must cultivate in our own hearts understanding of the legitimate aspirations of other peoples and an honest disposition to help them to obtain the good things of this world. We must constantly strive to allow every other race the full right and opportunity to realize the complete development and expression of its own culture, and to contribute that culture to the enrichment of the world's life, always granted that it does not, by realizing itself, hinder unwarrantably the self-realization of its fellow races. That no race might be able to hinder our own self-realization, we must, I conceive, prepare to defend ourselves in case of need. )

Mr. Speaker, it is eleven o'clock.

At eleven o'clock the house adjourned, without question put, pursuant to standing order.
